Preface

Human advancement and achievement dates back to the early years of our lives. Top psychologists point out that the first year of life is the most important. However, through an extensive and efficient I.D.I.O.T.S.S. study, basic evidence has been provided that the first four years of academy life are influential in shaping the character of the student who has experienced such phenomena as institutionalized living.

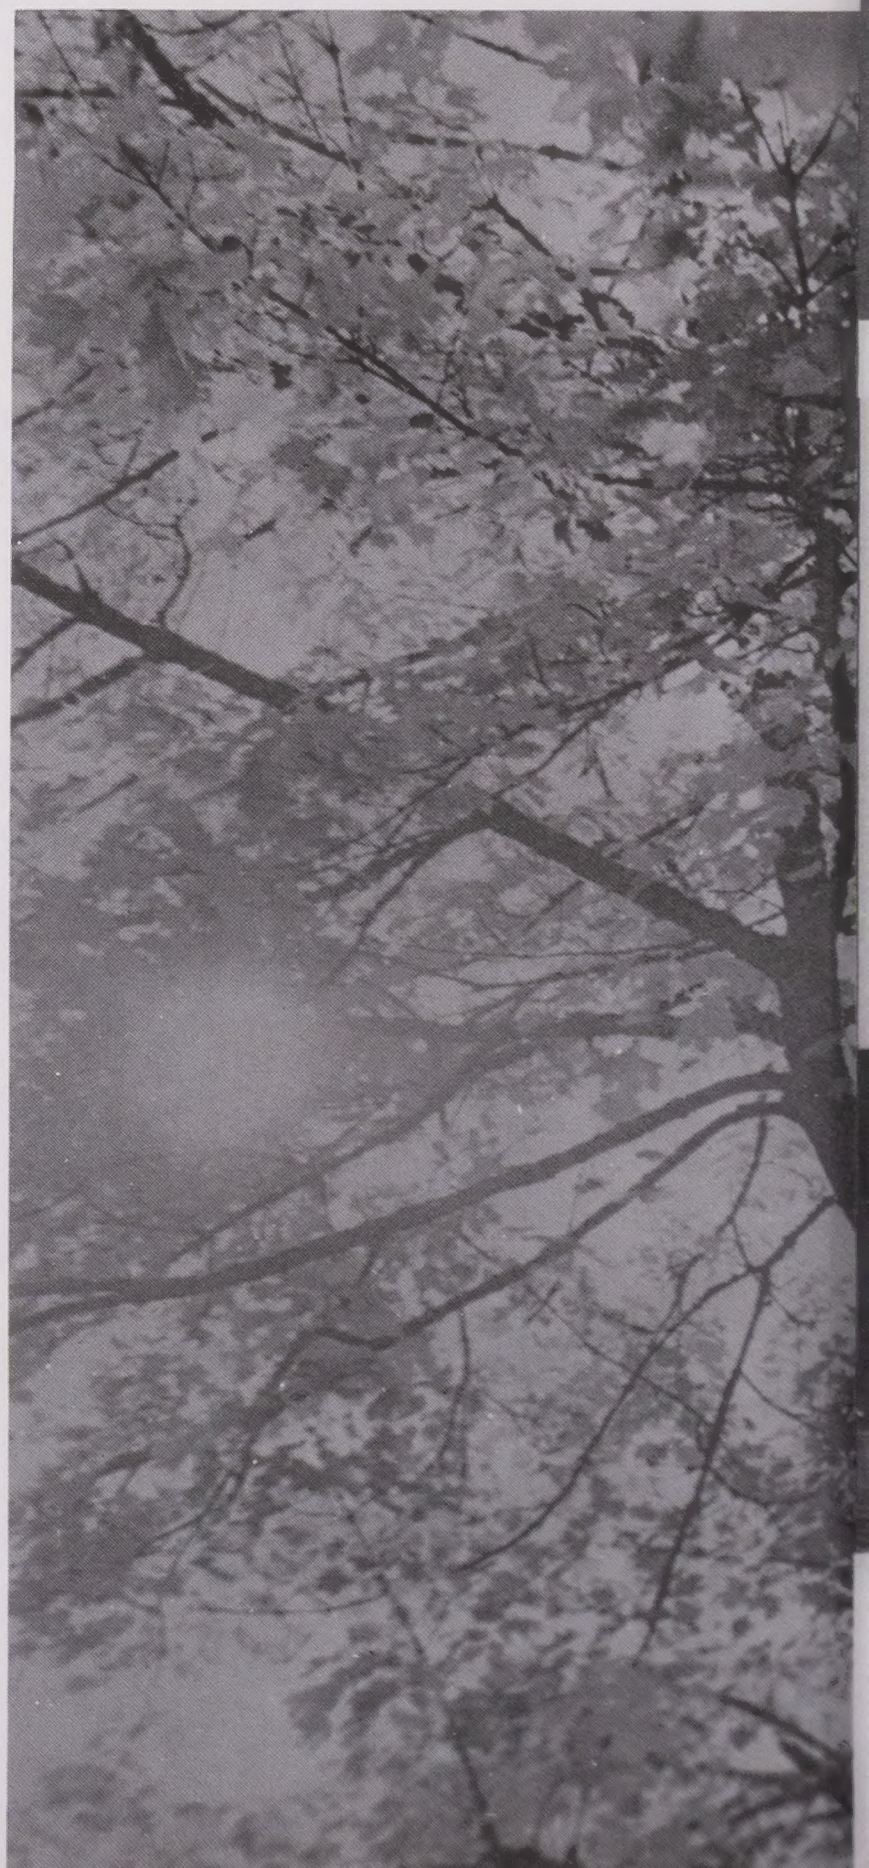

Each basic experience which is pictured in the following visual study, serves as a fundamental building block in the behavioral patterns of the attending students.

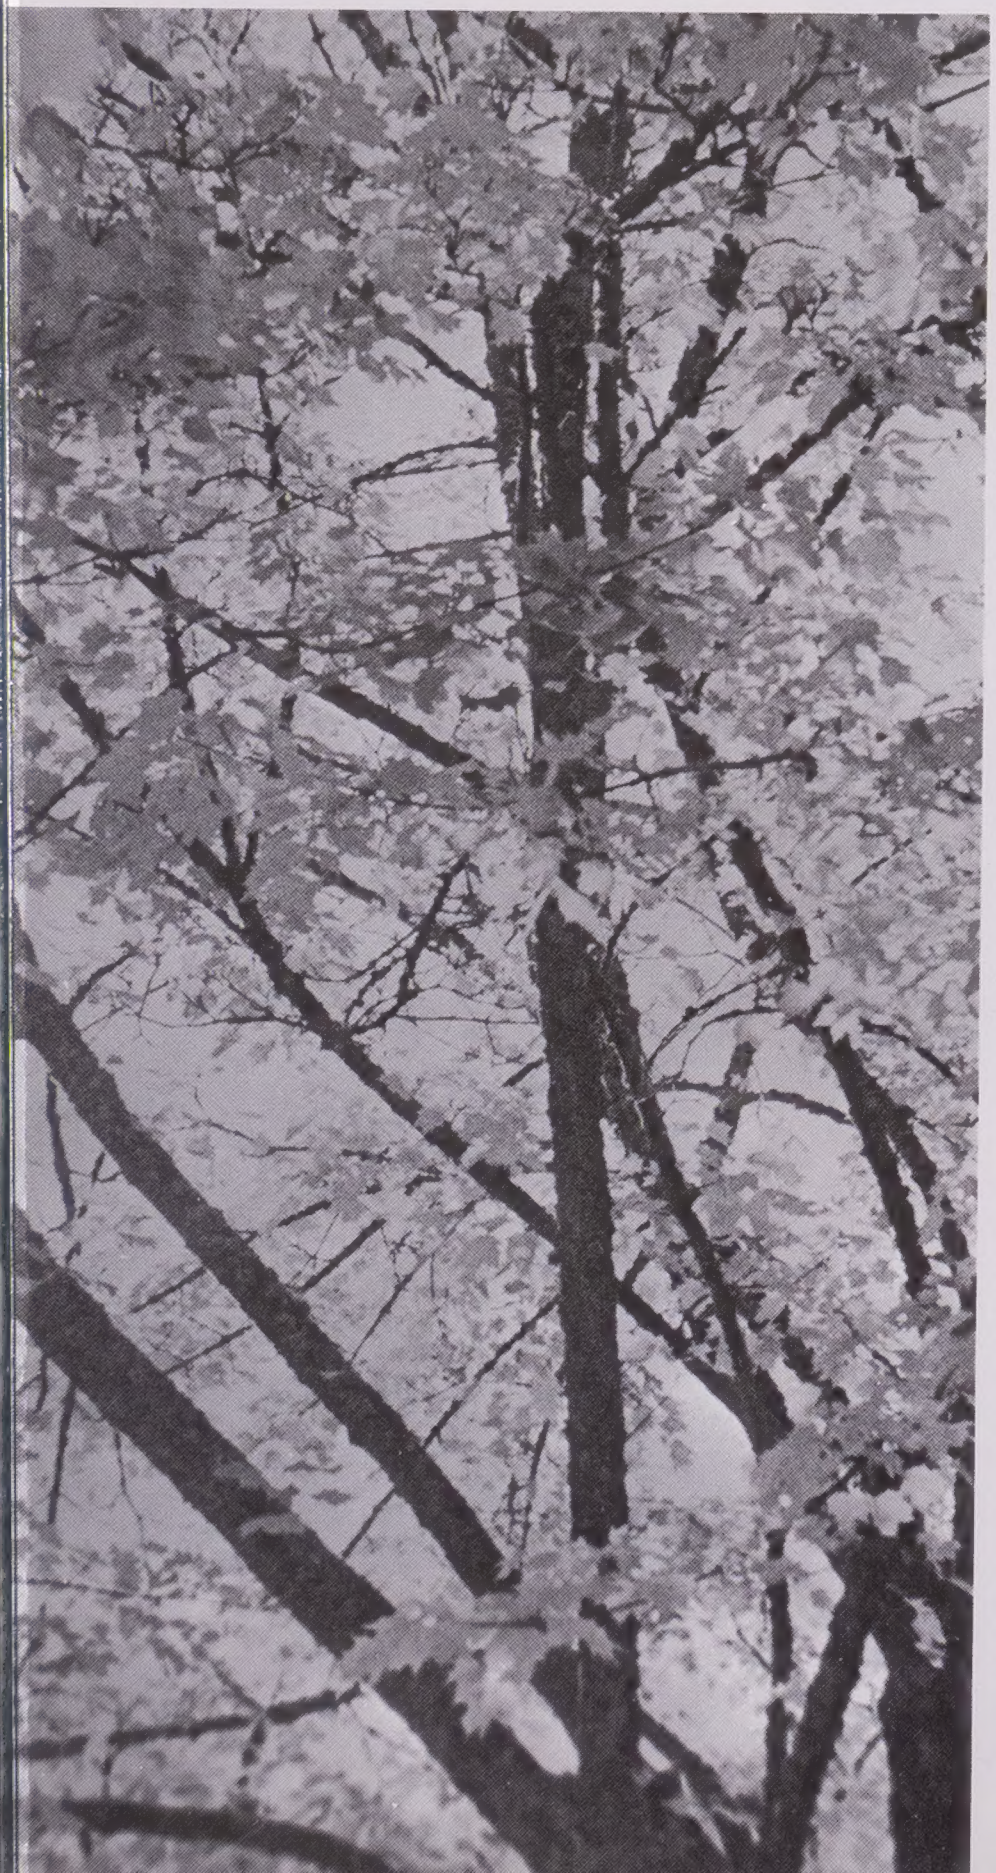

Thus it must be remembered that each encounter, each banquet, each class, every turn of the screw, taming of the shrew, killing of the mocking bird, each cliché for that matter, contributes to our character make-up.

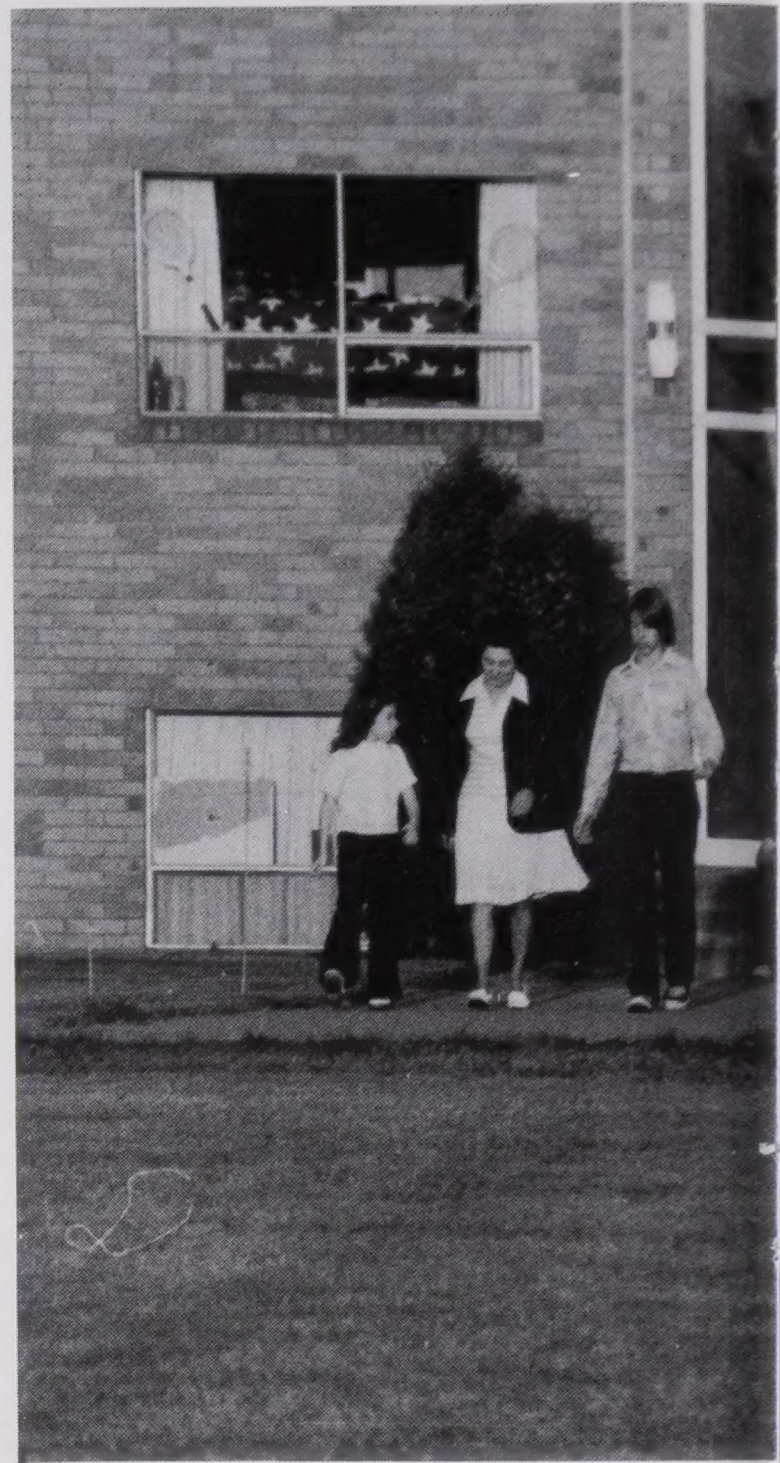

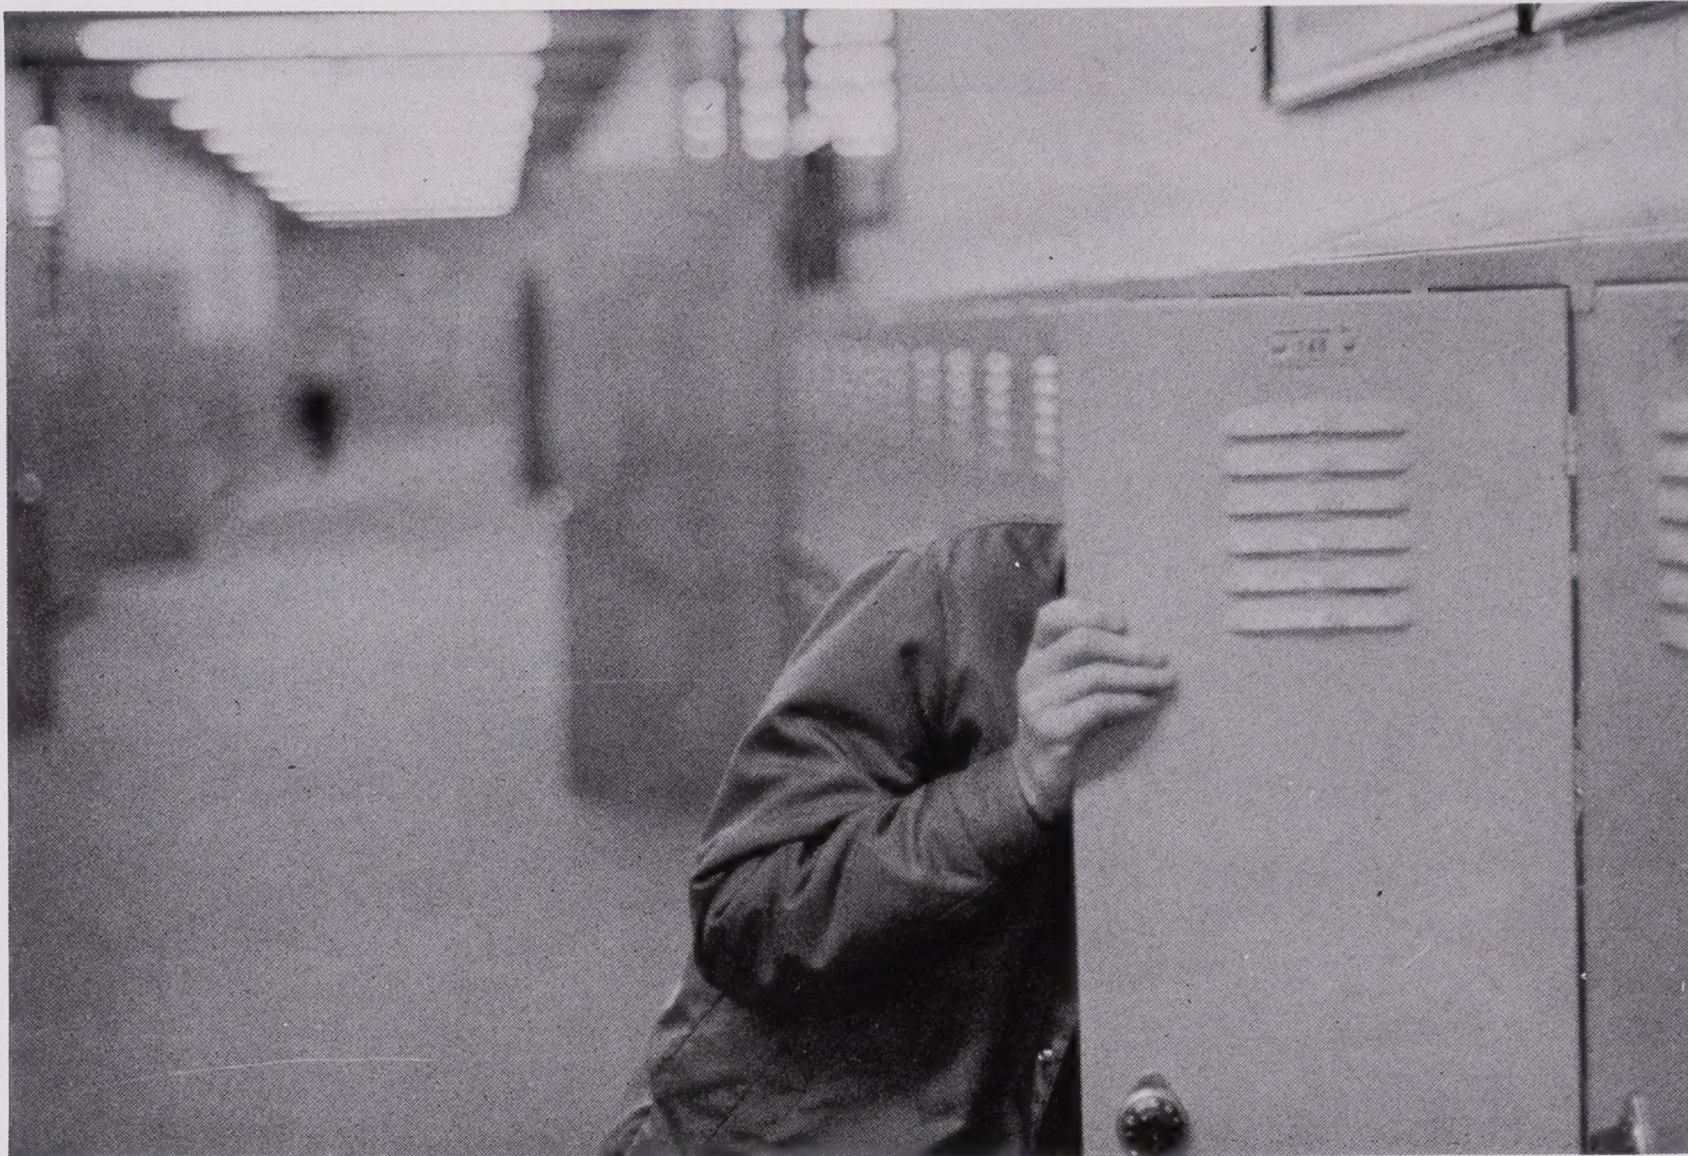

So we dedicate this study to the advancement of behavioral research, as this study alone will soon serve as a major element.

PEOPLE

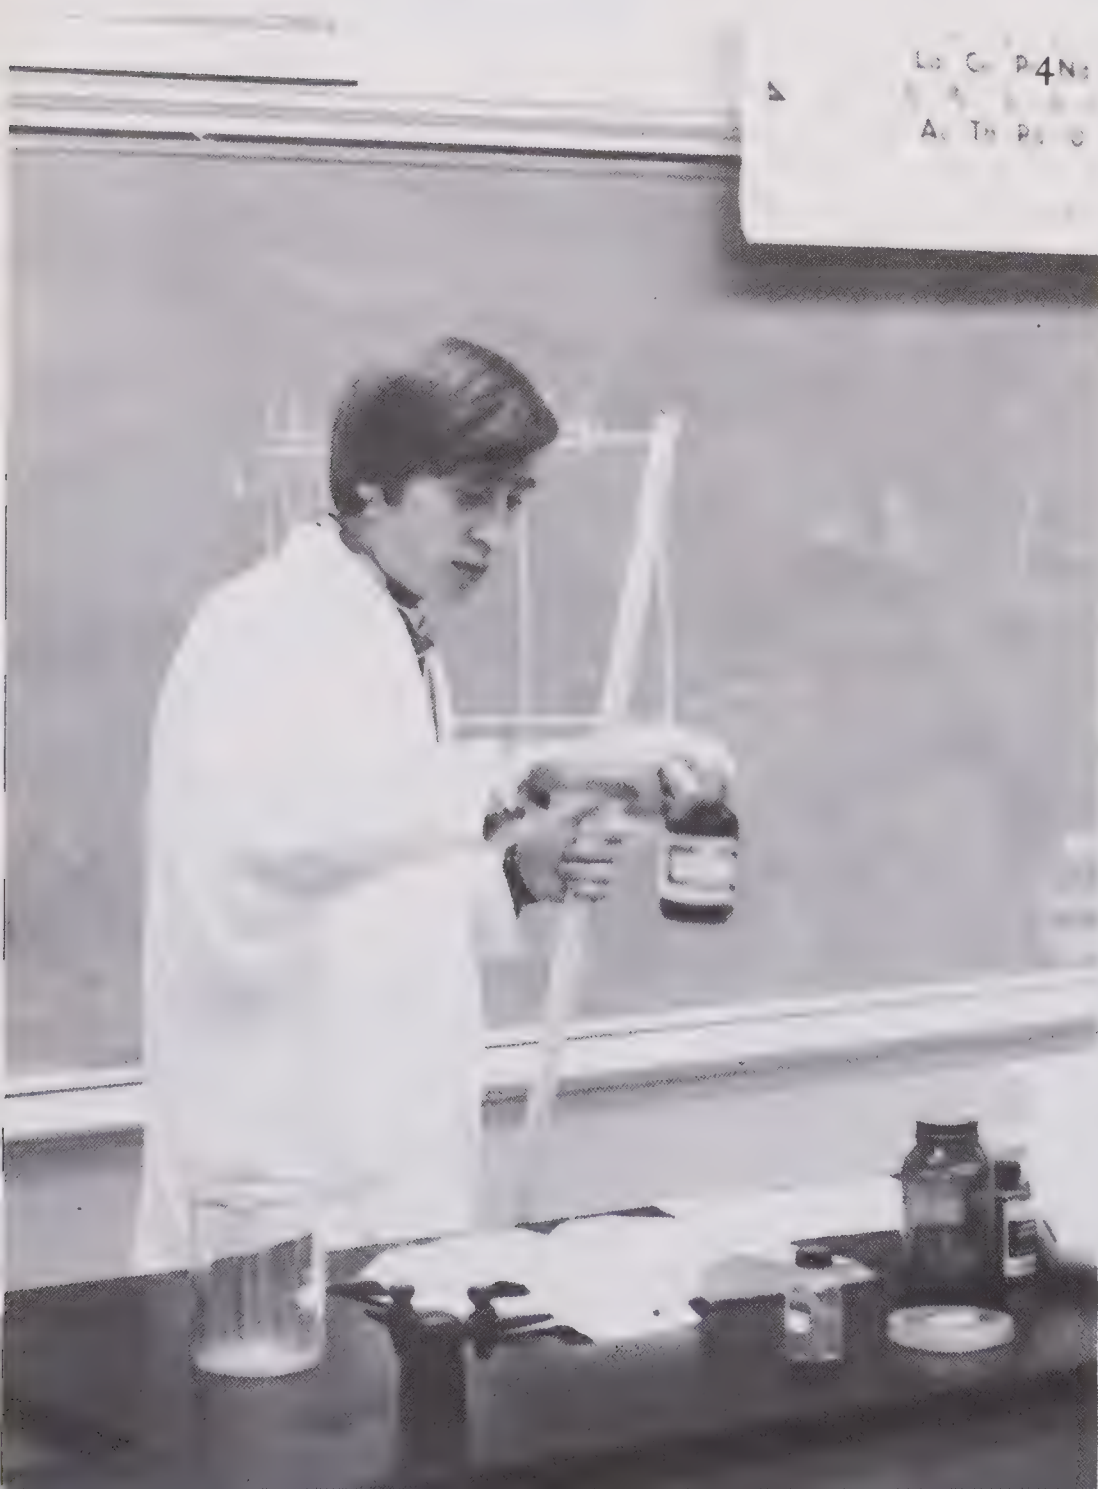

People. The mere mention of the name brings to mind a myriad of images, each one holding an important niche in our memories. We have people to wake up to, people to say "hi" to, people to be more than mere friends with. We find this all here at academy. Each person we meet in the halls has an important impact on our life. It is for that reason I.D.I.O.T.S.S. has comprised the following images of those people, the objects of our study, who influence our lives.

SENIORS

Seniors. Three years of high school lay behind. Maturity, alas, is the byword. They know where their classes are, they know who they are and by all means, they are where it is at. They are the big guys. But through it all, they fail to realize, that just around the corner they start all over again.

SOPHOMORES

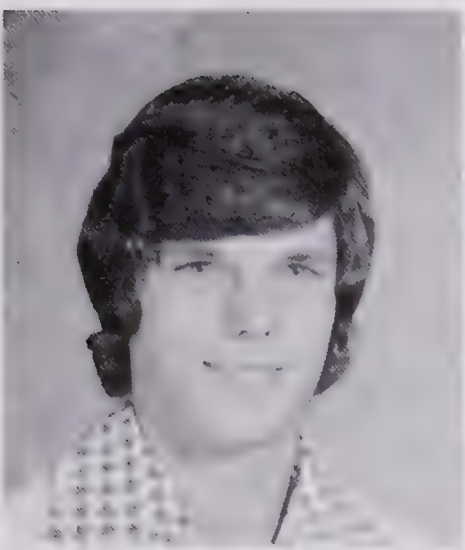

Sophomores. With a quick flourish of registration, instant maturity is attained for those formerly struggling Freshmen. At least that's how they think. Nonetheless; they are unique — the upper of the unders, they find themselves moving up in the world. They now know where their classes are, they know all the Auburn customs, and with glee administer to Freshmen the tortures that they recieved a year ago.

FRESHMEN

Freshmen. The mere mention of the name brings to mind ... Well, for different people it means different things. For the racist Senior comes quickly the impression of building blocks and sand boxes. But for the striving, new Freshman it is an exciting, thrilling plateau, a new step in their ever-expanding life. It is a time of mixed up classes, embarrassing new situations (yes, you stand up when a girl comes to the table) and in general, it becomes life in the most thrilling of ways. It becomes, in effect, step one of their psychological development.

Following are a few of the people which have experienced the above situations, Freshmen. . .

ACTIVITIES

Activities. I.D.I.O.T.S.S.' research and studies indicate the psychological need that Homo sapians have for social functions. To satisfy this necessity the following organized, or unorganized activities are provided for the students enjoyment

Campaign '75

Station 7: It becomes important to remember that the Olympics today are only a beginning. You will also carry out your career past today and you go to the referee (otherwise, unapspiciously known as Work Supervisor) and receive your racing schedule for the year.

Station 1: Registrars Office: The big day of the registration marathon has come at last. Eager crowds jam the hallways of the Olympic race, pushing and shoving, each planning to be first at the registrars office. This Olympics reminds the casual viewer of Mexico City '68 and Munich '72. But now comes the time when you near the finish of the first part of the race, great beads of sweat rolling off your face. You push your way into the office, in first place, grab your registration baton and run quickly to station 2.

Station 6: The locker room of the Ad building comes into view. Your locker in which to store your attire of study is assigned. After you're assigned your strategic chapel seat for the pep assemblies in the year following, you grasp baton firmly and speed eagerly on.

Station 2: The rigors of the race have begun. Eager mouths with insincere integrity strain with mind-tiring effort to upturn at the corners. This is a true test of wit and character, with a top trained character winning out.

Station 4: The time to face a panel of judges has found its place in the Olympics. The object of this game is to ironically place the classes of least importance on your schedule, while trigonometry and advanced logic go down the drain. You lose — for non-conformity and a desire to gain important knowledge. Go directly to Jail, do not pass Go, do not collect $200.

Station 5: You have a wide choice in the field of music and you try to impress the music talent scouts at Station 5 by using a lot of musical terms in your vocabulary. "I feel that I will CRESCENDO greatly by attending AAA, and I will try to be VIVACE with the girls." Band, choir, piano, voice, they're all there for you to take advantage of. Just hand over your radio, turn in your tape deck, burn your sheet music, and proceed with your new music books for the year onto Station 6.

Station 3: As the cross country event is about to start the tension is mounted. Who will get the right signature first? Will the boys get Mrs. Maddox's signature or will the girls get Mr. Wisbey's? Not if the faculty on campus duty can help it!

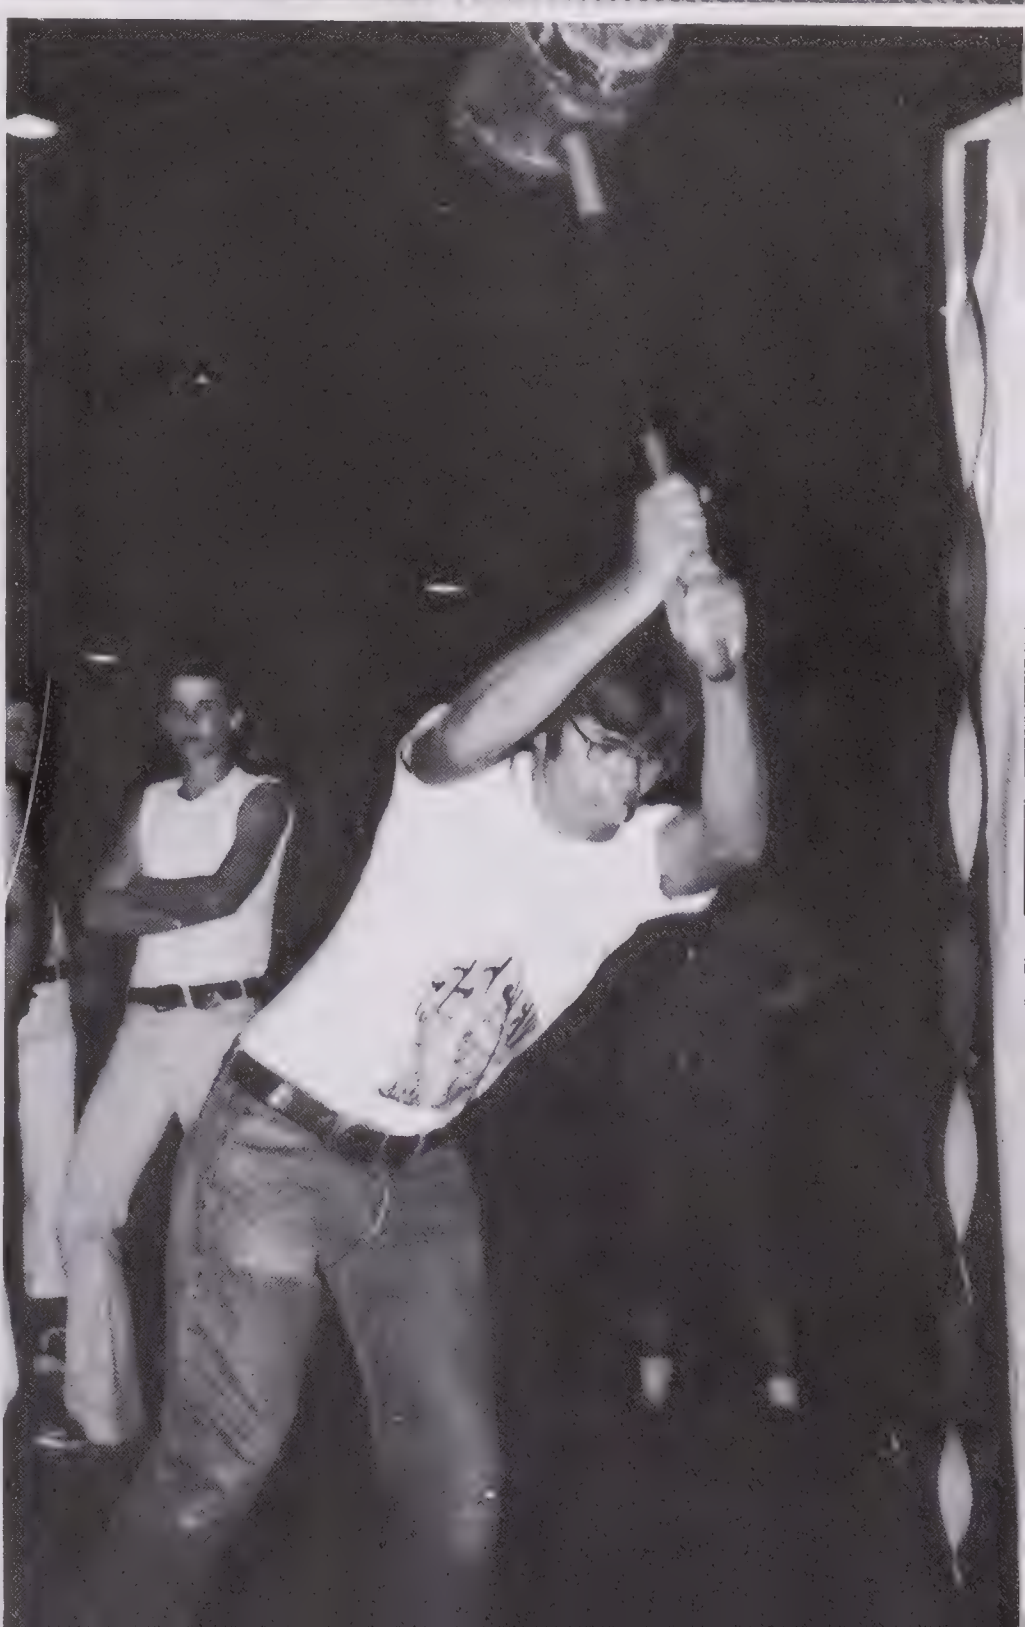

Station 8: The "Handshake". The winner circle. Sweaty palms, exhausted bodies. The swift, automatic smile, the name that is soon to be forgotten. The replenishment of energy by dripping red watermelon. School...

Fall Festival

Like wow man. Talk about a boss Fall Festival. Like the jives weren't there but the people were. Like slick down the hair and roll down the bobbies. Get your picture taken with Mary Jane and bee bop to the soda shop. Cruise down to Budd's Greasy Spoon and pick up a rosy-lipped cutie. Drop in with the gang, and break out the chains. Drag the gut. Become a part of the fifties. There's nowhere to go but up! Like uh — how 'bout splitting out to the sub races?

Z.K. Banquet

The psychological aspects of the reversal in roles of datatory invitations became evident in this year's Zeta Kappa Banquet. For example; let's take the case study of Girl Wonder X in the girls dorm. The night comes when it's time to receive the acceptance or refusal of Boy Wonder Y, that dashing young man in his shining silk Hapi coat. Once received, the preparations begin, complete with kimono mending and tea appreciation courses. While on the other side hari-kari parties are being thrown and crash kamakazi pilot courses taught.

Finally, the banquet comes and goes with fond adieus and sionaras, and Couple Z is brought together once again.

Mathematical Analyzation: $X+Y=Z$

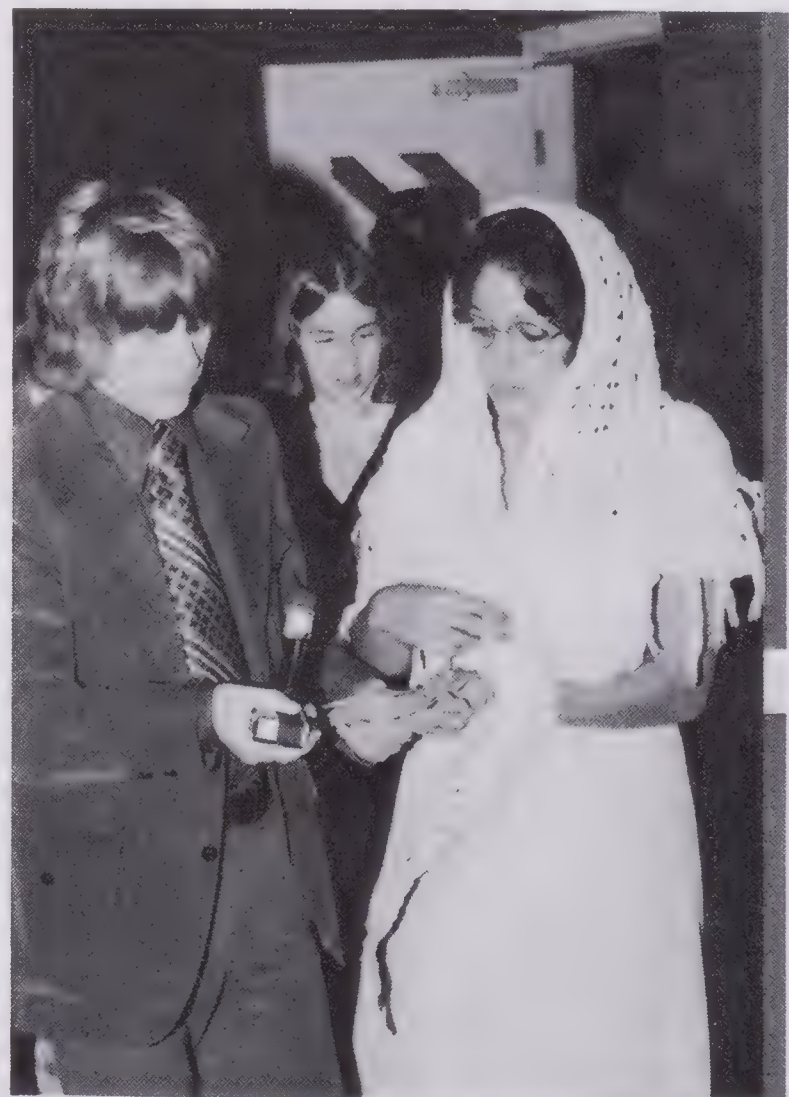

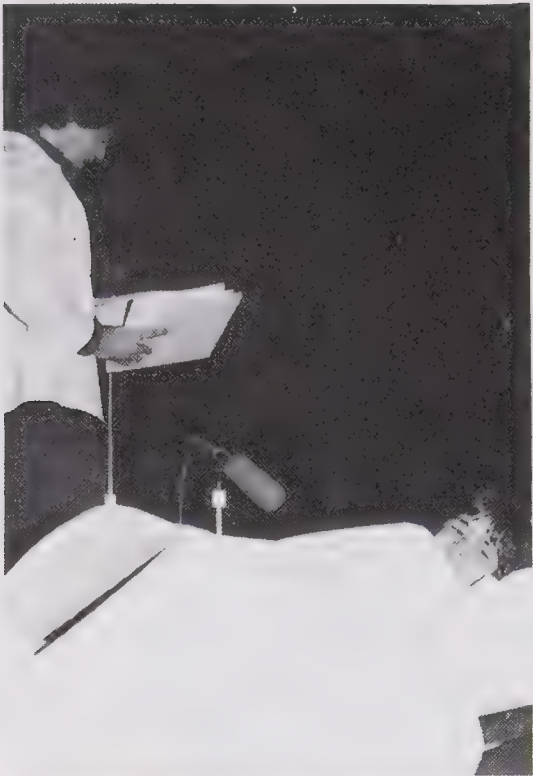

Culture Banquet

Sweat dripping from her forlorn brows, agony racking her consciousness, she trambled at the foreboding podium, and with anxiousness declared to the seething mob below, "Be ye prepared to be culturally enlightened."

Auburn shook in horror as radicalism swept the very mainstream of life at AAA: or the ASAAA culture week. Students wept in shame as their favorite popularity game was snatched thoughtlessly from their grasp. Instead informative chapels about cultural aspects of European countries were forced down their unwilling throats, a whole banquet filled with the cold turkey of no courtesy king or queen, life was no longer the same!

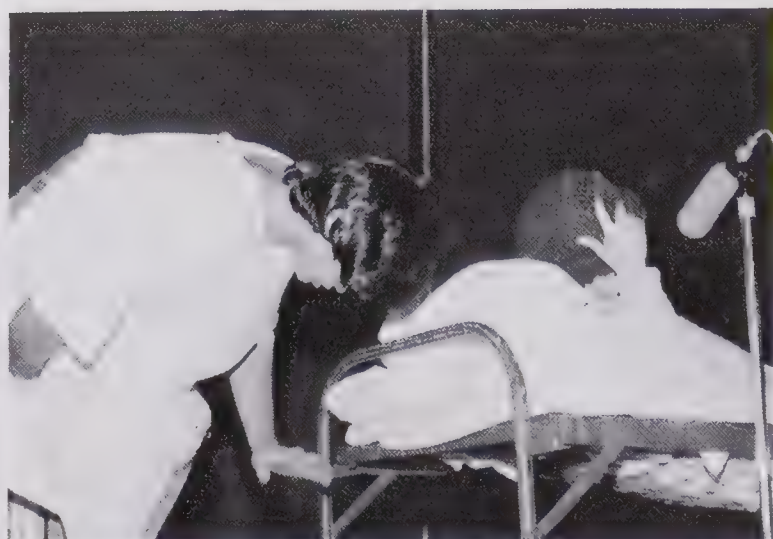

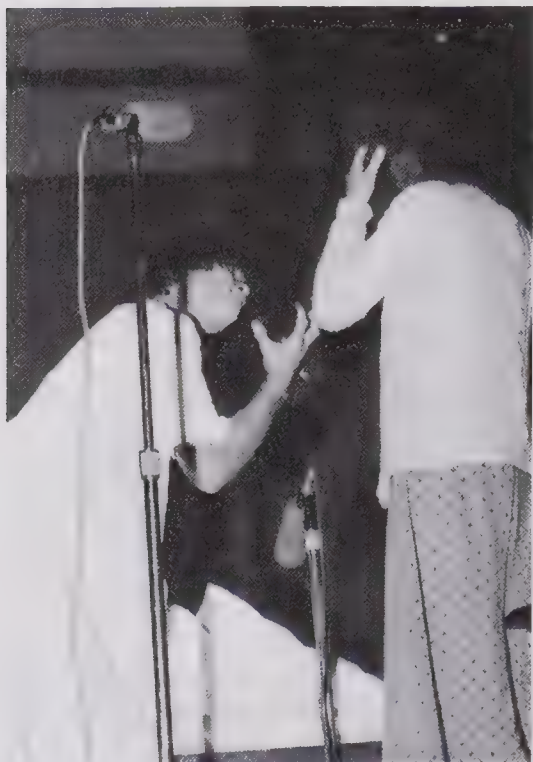

To end on a happy note, life still continues at Auburn even though the question will remain through endless ages, "Would I have been on the courtesy court?"

Amateur Hour “Looking for America”

Out of darkness came forth light. Out of silence came sound. So was the experience known as Amateur Hour '74. Three screens sat dominantly on the blue haze of a stage and radiantly projected images of the land we love so well along with Mom and apple pie, produced awe and nostalgia in the hearts of the crowd. Looking for America, with images of peace, images of joy, songs and words which shape our destinies, medleys that nourish our youth, humor that affects our funny bones, and majestic chords that found their way into life at the birth of our country. Amateur Hour, a mind-experience much more than pictures, thoughts, music, and words . . . it was people, “Looking For America”.

Everything you never wanted to know about AAA; but we're going to tell you anyway!

Below are just a few of the terms that we consider necessary for nearly every four year Senior to know in order to survive:

1. A.S.A.A.A. . . . (Richard M. Nixon, where were you when we needed you?)-The Associated Students of Auburn Adventist Academy (yawn) Student Government (sigh) WAKE UP! Let's move on to something more exciting. . .

2. Citizenship Notation (that's a no, no)-for some students, an annual report on their social conduct, almost as much fun as a kick in the pants.

3. Dean's List (oh, please let me see you tonight, my room is caving in!)-This list is set out every evening after worship so that students have the opportunity to speak with the dean, and tell him or her your problems, and try to convince them that you have such a rotten home life that you cannot possibly go to your own room and study.

4. Harry Pine (burn, baby, burn, please!)-a fun, history workshop where students are given the opportunity to experience what slavery was really like.

5. Home Leaves (I long to touch the green, green grass of home)-Once a month students are allowed to leave AAA (with tears in their eyes, I'm sure) and travel on to their homes. Students are allowed only a certain quota of leaves and as soon as a student's amount is used up you can find some bizzare reasons for going home; My grandmother died (she died 6 times last year and 2 this year), you fear you have leukemia and need to go to the doctor (funny, your physical for AAA didn't say anything about leukemia!) and the list goes on and on. . .

6. House Committee (I'm crossing that ole river Jordan) this is the all-powerful committee on campus. It decides the fate and destiny of students (and former students) and also make surprising breakthroughs in the area of sipping Postum around the principal's desk.

7. "L.M." (didn't think we'd put it in, did you girls?)-this term is exclusive to the females on campus for it is a descriptive abbreviation for the males on campus-"Leaping Material".

8. Laundry (Just think, a whole new wardrobe every week!)-Students aren't forced to experience the drudgery of doing their own laundry, INSTEAD, they can send the dirty clothes to the school laundry where the launderers play 'Laundry basket upset' and "Let's see how many pretty colors we can run together in one load". It's good, "clean" fun!

9. Lover's Light (evil is conceived in the dark)-This light is located between the gym and the art building. Before it was mandatory that the light was turned on, couples used this little breezeway for UNsupervised play period.

10. Mini-Park (bench hours 12:29 p.m.-12:30 p.m., closed weekends, "Isn't there something better you could be doing?") The mini-park is located center campus for the use of the students to sit, meditate, socialize, or be "socialized", whatever the case may be.

11. On Social (let's say good-bye to love)-When students of the opposite sex start spending too much time together (you know, opposites attract) the administration decides that the two will not be spending that time together, or in other words, they make opposites repel (it never works).

12. Peanut-butter loaf and Joshua Steaks (Ms. Food Service Director, can I have a doggie bag please?)-Now no longer a part of our menu, since these delicacies are gone, the students have been removed from the endangered species list.

13. Study Hall (tell Ole Pharoah, to let my people go. . .)-Running a close second to Harry Pine, (see #4) this workshop equals, if not surpasses, the workings of Alcatraz.

14. Tostadoes (it takes longer to be better)-an almost edible (?) creation served in the cafeteria EVERY Friday noon. How much longer will it take?

15. Town Trips (the last break for freedom)-Yes, town trips ARE available!

16. Village (you know I love my freedom)-One third of the students that attend AAA commute from their homes. They do not get to experience the joys of study hall, worship absences, or dorm room checks. Instead they have to go through the pains of TV, home cooking, cars, outside jobs, new experiences, and etc . . . Oh how the dorm students feel sorry for the village. (I wouldn't give up my room in the dorm for anything!)

17. Youth Guidance (don't say ssss-eeee-xxxx)-This is the Senior Bible class where we learn that "it is unbelievable what people will believe in order not to believe" or is it, "it is believable what some people unbelieve in order to unbelieve that they are believing" or is it. . . ?

Four - year Seniors

Well gang, here we are—we've been through a lot together (remember Mr. Lowe's Freshman Bible Class?) Remember that first Registration Day? How scary it really was? There were crowds of faces—all strange—and an uncomfortable feeling seemed to take over your excited body. Remember all those numbers? Ad. Building locker number and combination, P.E. locker number and combination, chapel seat row and number, book numbers, class numbers, and room numbers. And all those unfamiliar faces! Funny how everyone seemed to know where they were going but you! But soon the locker's lock was worn, it became natural to sit in your chapel seat, and the unfamiliar faces turned into the friends you'll remember for a lifetime.

With these friends you've shared four years of happiness, excitement, tragedy, embarrassment, and boredom. If you can — think back to ohe first REALLY happy time you can think of — I imagine it was when you got your first Rainier Vista, right? (no!?!), or maybe the first excitement you think of was the day when "Danny" Ringering came within a tenth of a second from winning the mile on Campus Day. For a perfect example of embarrassment remember when Brad Brown "did his thing" at the end of the Hallelujah Chorus; while the rest of the choir performed the Messiah at the Tacoma church? (Sorry Brad, we just HAD to put it in!) Then there were the scary times like the first banquet (the Z.K. Banquet) where the girls had to ask guys!

But, not all the days were filled with happiness — for some rain must fall, as we all well should know by now. There were a lot of tears shed at the death of Richard Carlson - some of us were made to realize that not always could there be life and happiness, because death and tears existed as well.

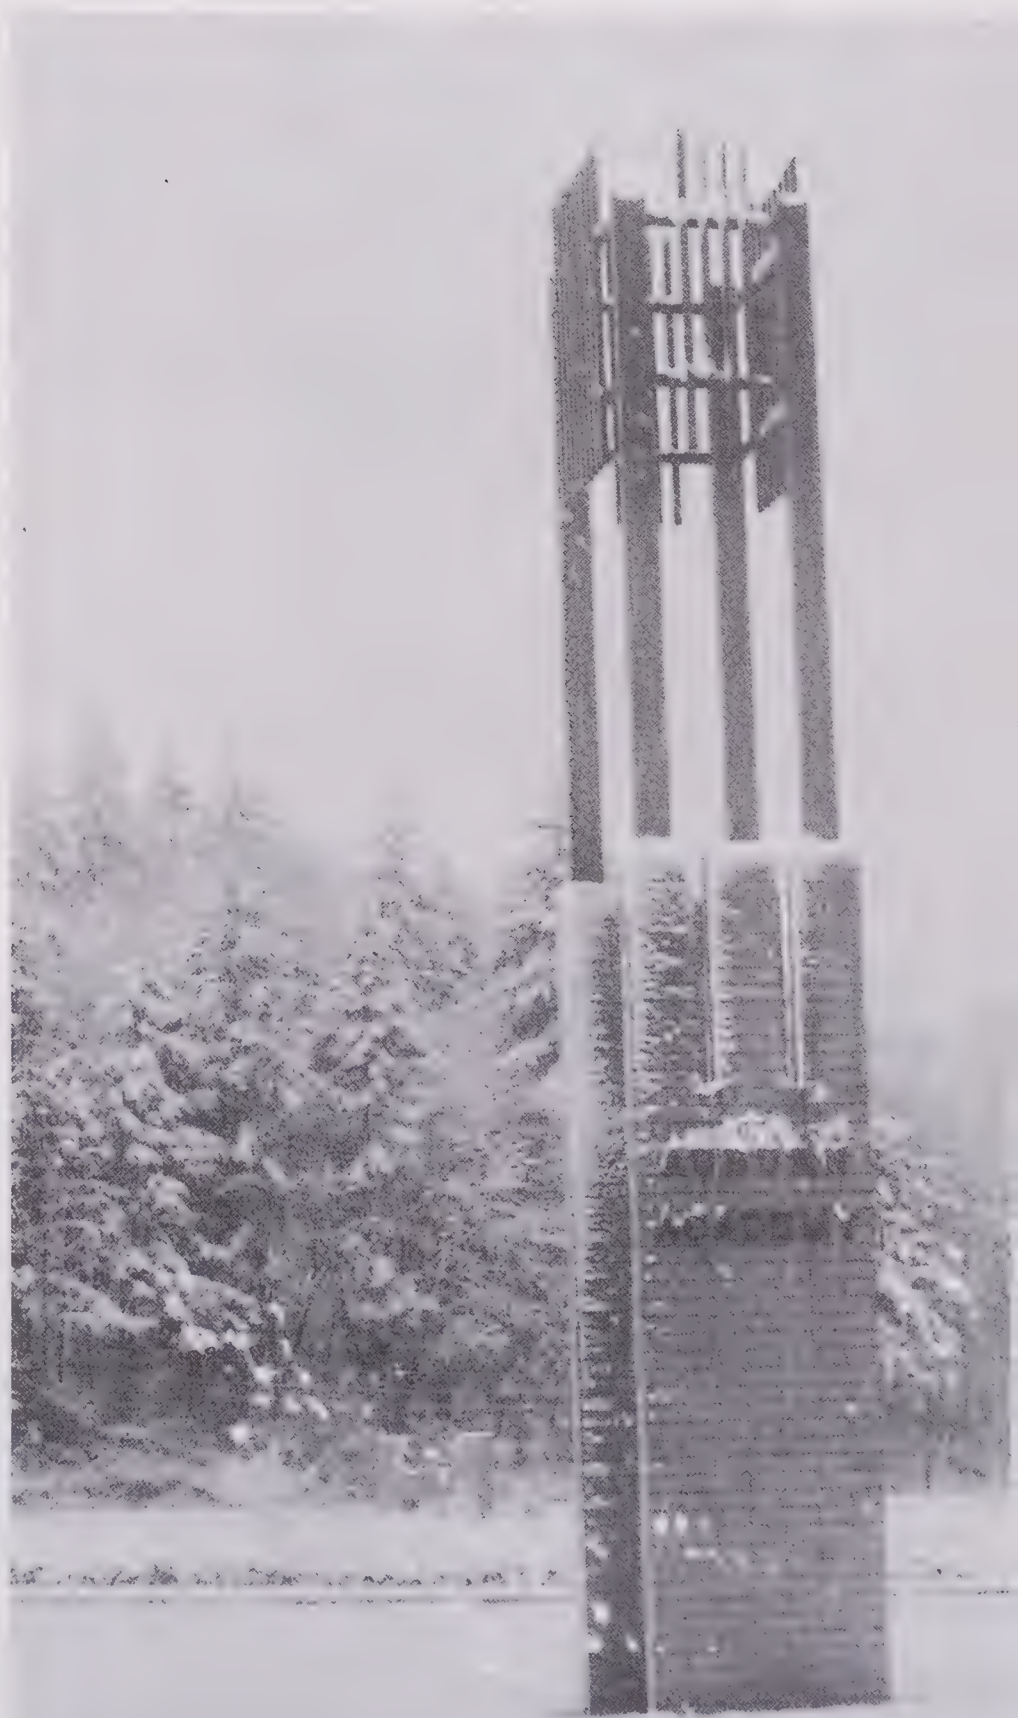

So gang — here we are: the "faithful fifty", the elite group that miraculously managed to remain loyal to each other and the halls of Auburn Adventist Academy for FOUR LONG YEARS...

Advice is like snow — the softer it falls, the longer it dwells upon and the deeper it sinks into the mind.

—Coleridge

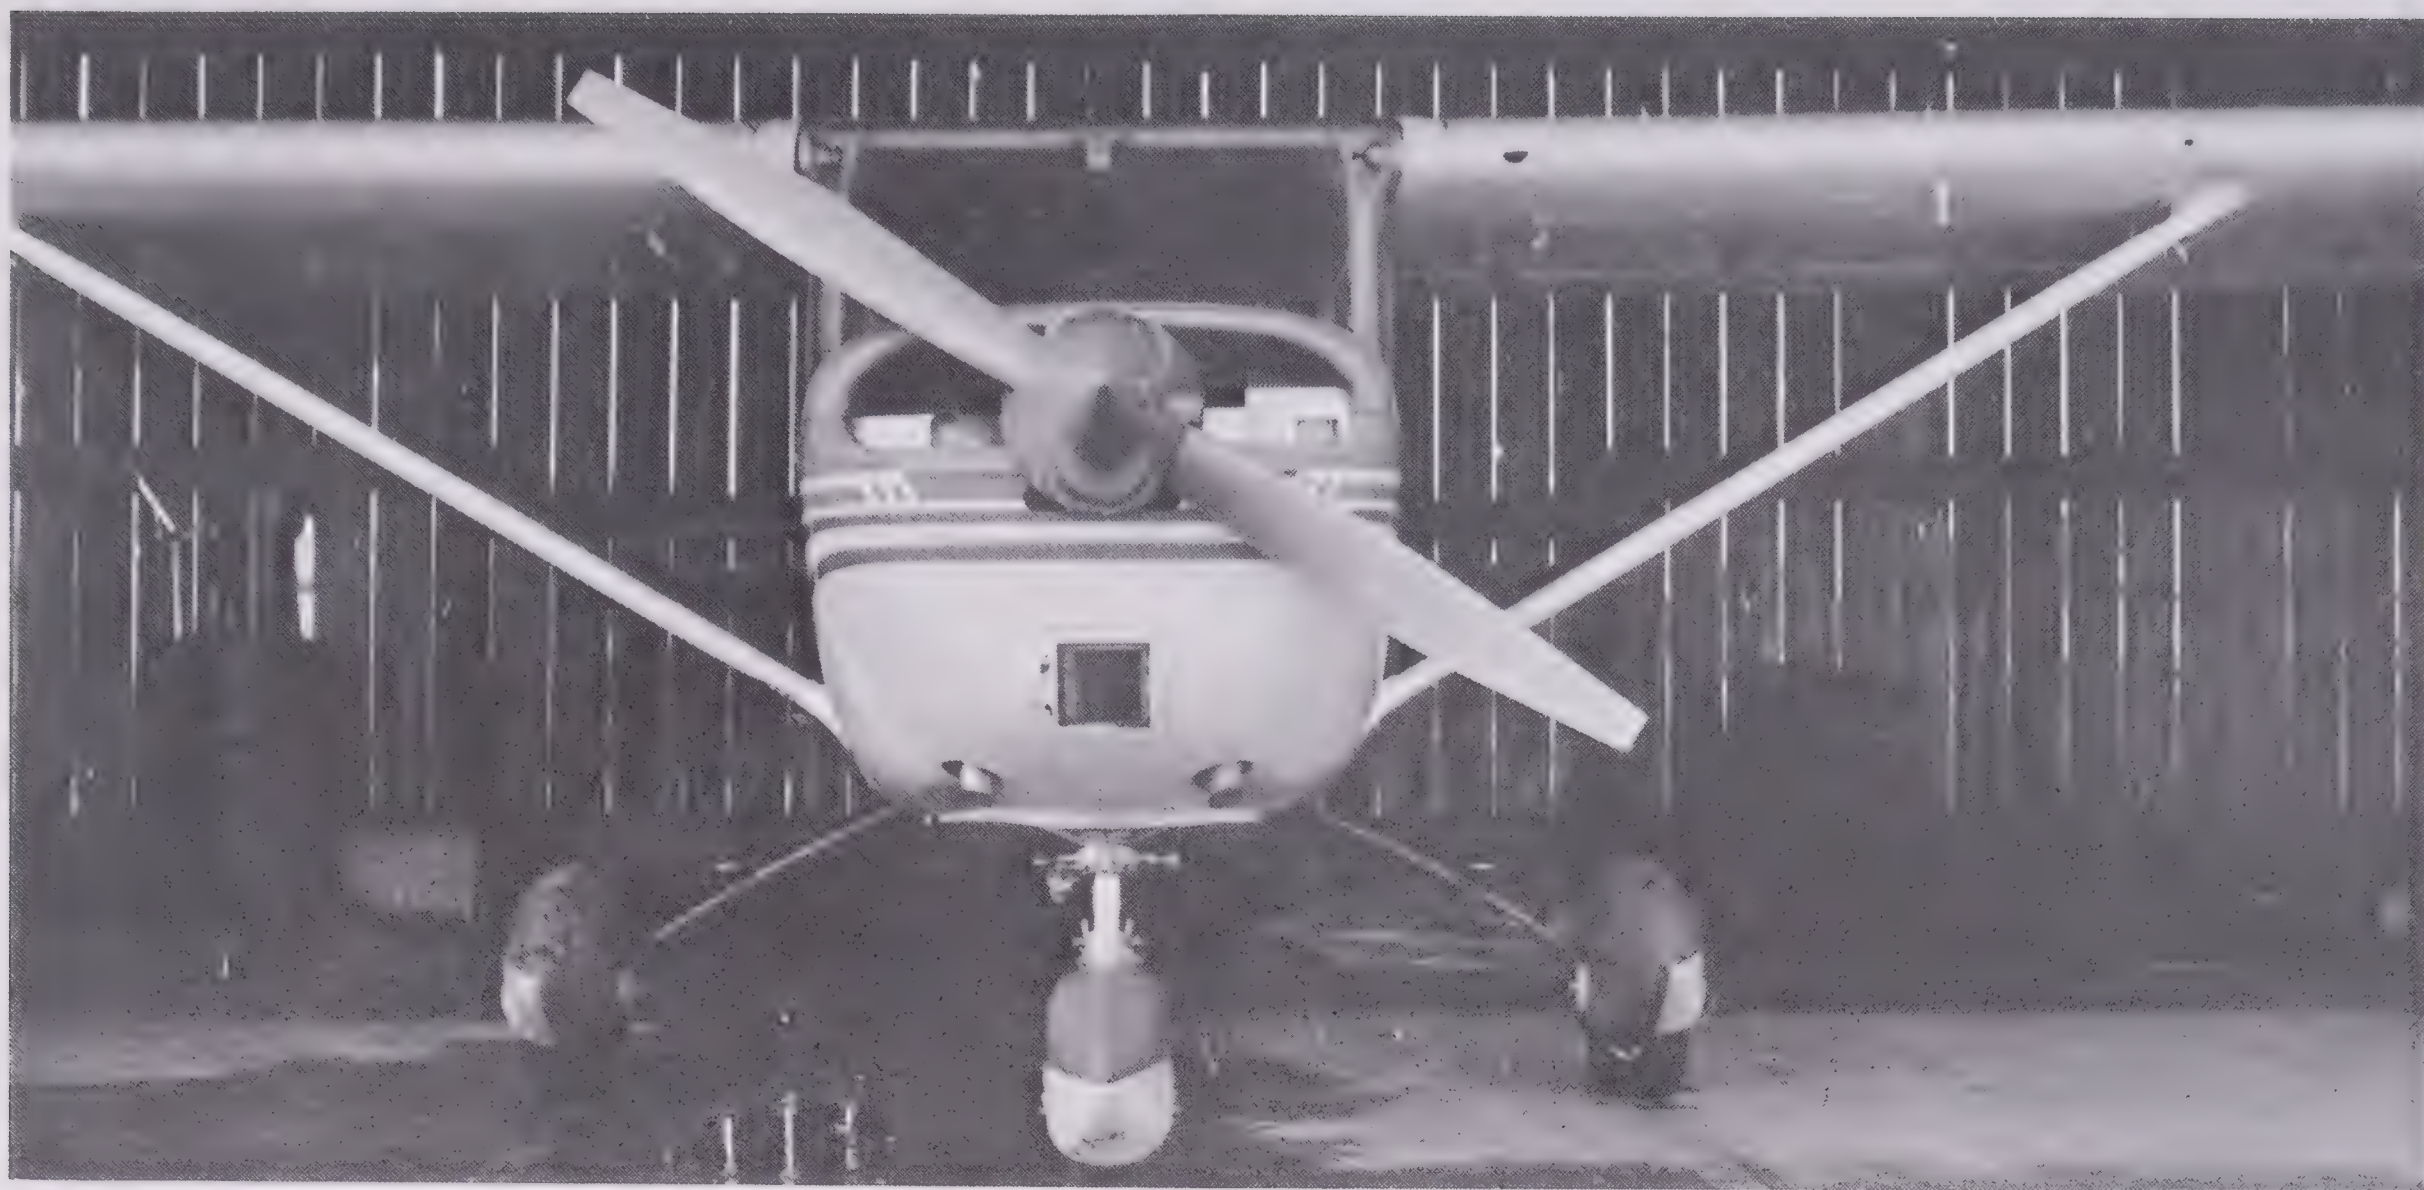

ORGANIZATIONS

Organizations. Human beings have the natural tendency to be together. This desire is not entirely sexual, it is also the basic desire to better one's self. The following organizations are for this purpose . . .

Since the beginning of man's history he has wished to fly. Galileo plagued his notebooks with contraptions that would make man fly. Yet it was not until a bicycle with wings floated a short stretch at the sands of Kitty Hawks that man finally realized his dreams.

Now ... a hop, skip, and a jump from the home of the 747, students need no longer to attach feather and wax-winged contraptions, and jump off inspiration point to fulfill their dreams of flight. Instead, with expenses slightly more then your average imported pigeon feathers, students can involve themselves in flying.

Then after physicals, orientations, solos, and all other assorted paraphenalia, the student is now licensed to fly.

What does it accomplish? What does he discover? What goes up must come down, and fast ...

1. Psychological Analyzation: Our process begins with the complete psychological analytical analyzation of our two guinea pigs (Sylvia Green and Budd Wagner) transcending visually into space. Our team of experts from I.D.I.O.T.S.S. delves deeply and dolorously, dissatisfied dissidently with occasional discovery of consanguinity in the consciences of our variegators.

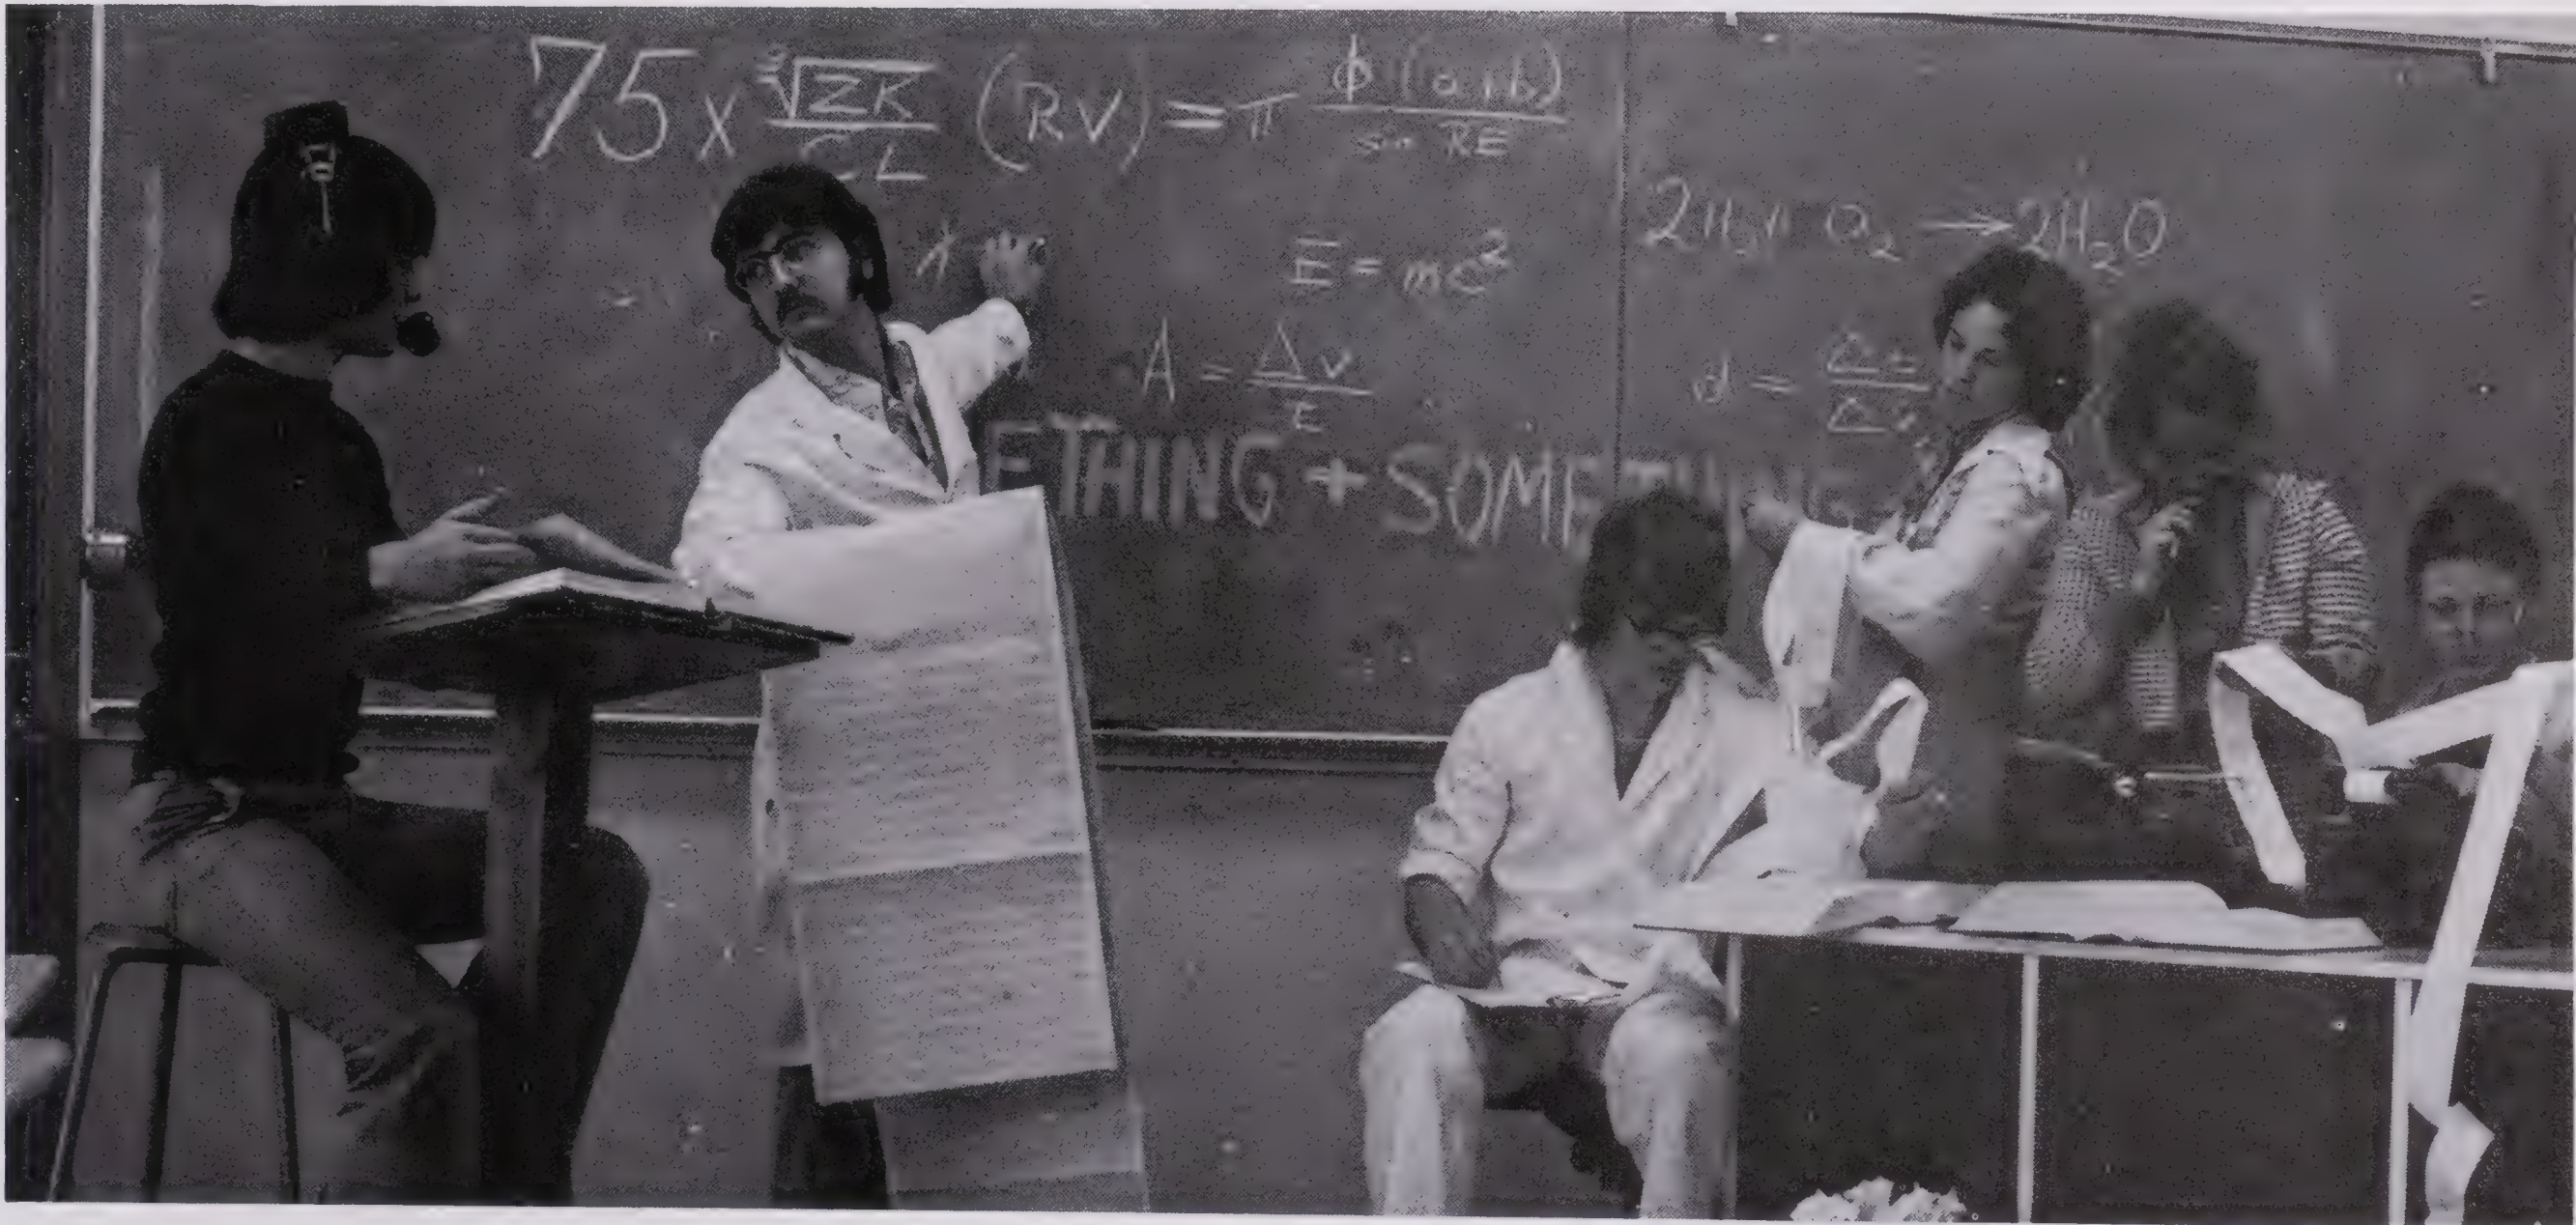

2. Physical Analyzation: Our next progression: antidimobilsimethicone* analy-ation. In laymen's terms, they're giving their speciman a physical check-up. The experts from I.D.I.O.T.S.S. work with perspicacity and pertinacity.

3. Data Processing: Ante-bellum leads to mitigation, which in turn produces a concise and specific report and analyzation concerning the psychological and physical data.

4. Final Analyzation of Results: Our final progression makes evident the fact that the title given to our team of research experts (I.D.I.O.T.S.S.) is very appropriate for this group. Now that this report is concluded, I.D.I.O.T.S.S.' are considering researching the complicated possibilities of transplanting a living human belly button.

Industrial Arts

And now an interview with I.D.I.O.T.S.S. professor, Dr. Ludwig B. Knowitall —

X. — Dr. could you give us some comments on the new Industrial Arts Building?

Dr. — Surely, I'd be glad too, just a moment as I look through my files . . . lets see . . . hmm, entertainment arts . . . biological arts . . . mathematical arts . . . I know it's here somewhere . . . yes, Industrial Arts. Yes according to my records the building was constructed in 1974 in a student campaign project.

X. — We are well aware of that, what we are interested in is your opinion of the building.

Dr. — Well lets get smart mouthed! So you want my opinion, OK, it's a cool building, it serves its purpose well and my statistical charts indicate that the students enjoy and benefit vastly from the new addition to the AAA campus.

X. — What classes are taught in the complex?

Dr. — Auto Mehcanics, taught by Mr. Bob Farver, Arts and Crafts and Woodworking taught by Mr. Bob Freitas, and Welding, taught by Mr. Ed Spady.

X. — Well those teachers should be happy to see their names up in lights in this years RV. I can see you are busy with some kind of experiment, can you relate to us exactly what you are doing?

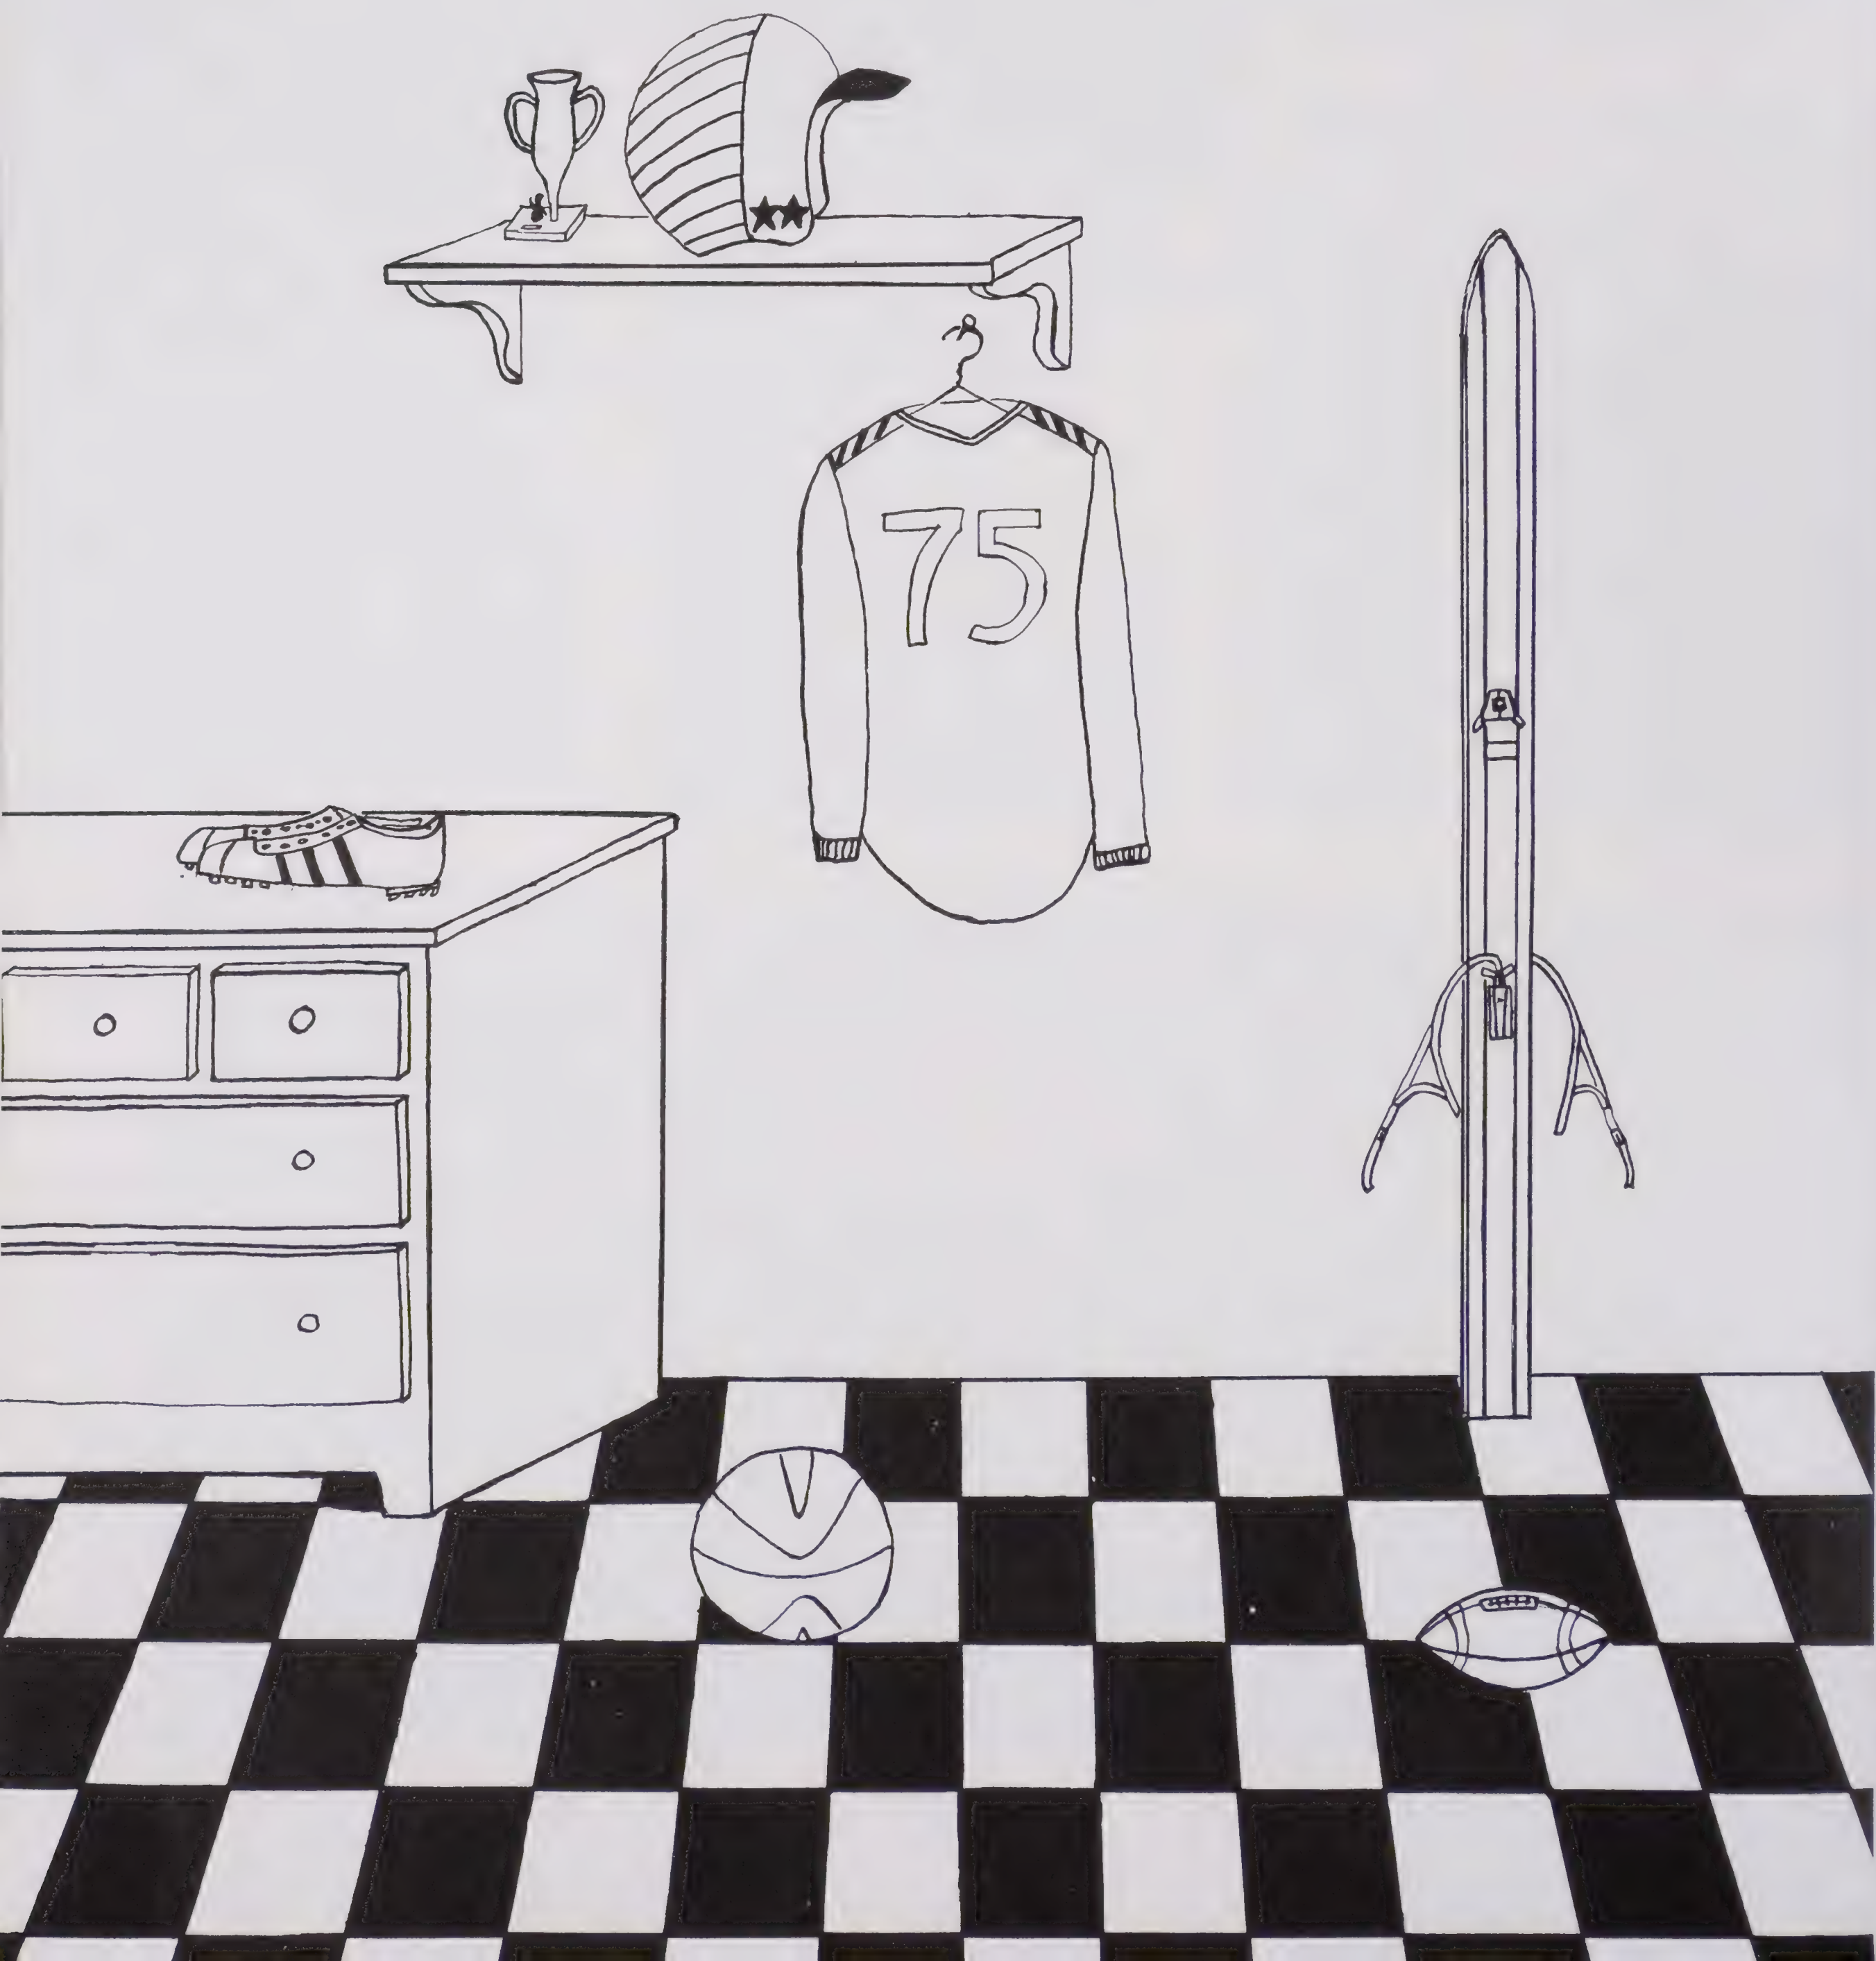

Dr. — I am now researching the possibilities of growing underwater Christmas trees.

X. — Well that sounds like a very worth-while project to spend the tax payers money on . . . thank you for your time. And now signing off, your on the the spot reporter in the laboratory of Dr. Ludwig B. Knowitall, Johnny Conson wishes you a good night . . . and be sure to check for sea urchins under the branches of you next X-mas tree.

. . . am I off air? Good! He was the stupidist man I've ever interviewed. He must be some kind of an idiot . . .

SPORTS

Sports. Fresh air, exercise, flexing muscles . . . I.D.I.O.T.S.S.' have discovered that these activities make up one side of the body, mind and soul triangle. Without sports the other two sides would collapse. Sports also can be used as an outlet for tension that arises from living in a confined atmosphere. Sports: very important to those who live at AAA . . .

Sailing

This year a new class was added to the curriculum of AAA: sailing. Now we will sit in on one of the class lectures.

Lesson 1: Yes, class, this is a sail boat. No, not that rock over there, the boat with the pole sticking out of it. Yes, that's right!

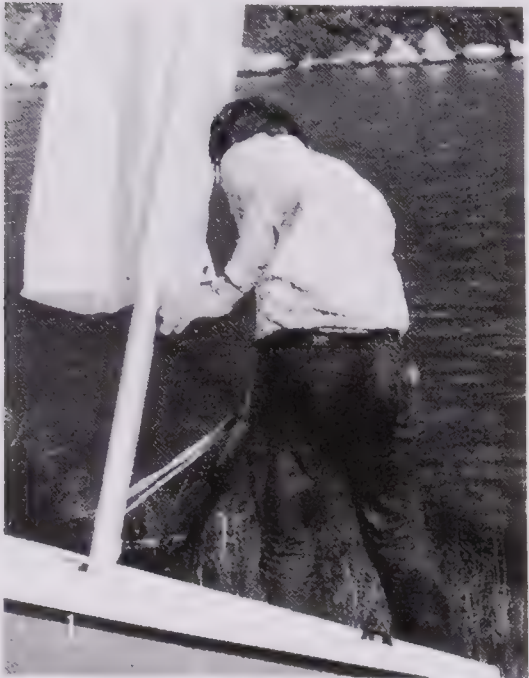

Lesson 2: What you see now is a student playing (?) with a sail. See how much fun he is having?

Lesson 3: The easiest way to get your boat going is to put it in the water. Once inside, get familiar with your surroundings and quit looking for the ignition switch!

Lesson 4: The pole is called a mast, and the big sheet is called a sail. It is, in effect, your motor.

Lesson 5: This is how not to sail . . . the land is for walking on, not sailing on. Turn around and start again, this time head for open seas.

Lesson 6: This is our dejected sailing teacher waiting for the men in the white coats. You too, can be just like him, in just a few more easy lessons . . . See you next week!

Donkey Basketball

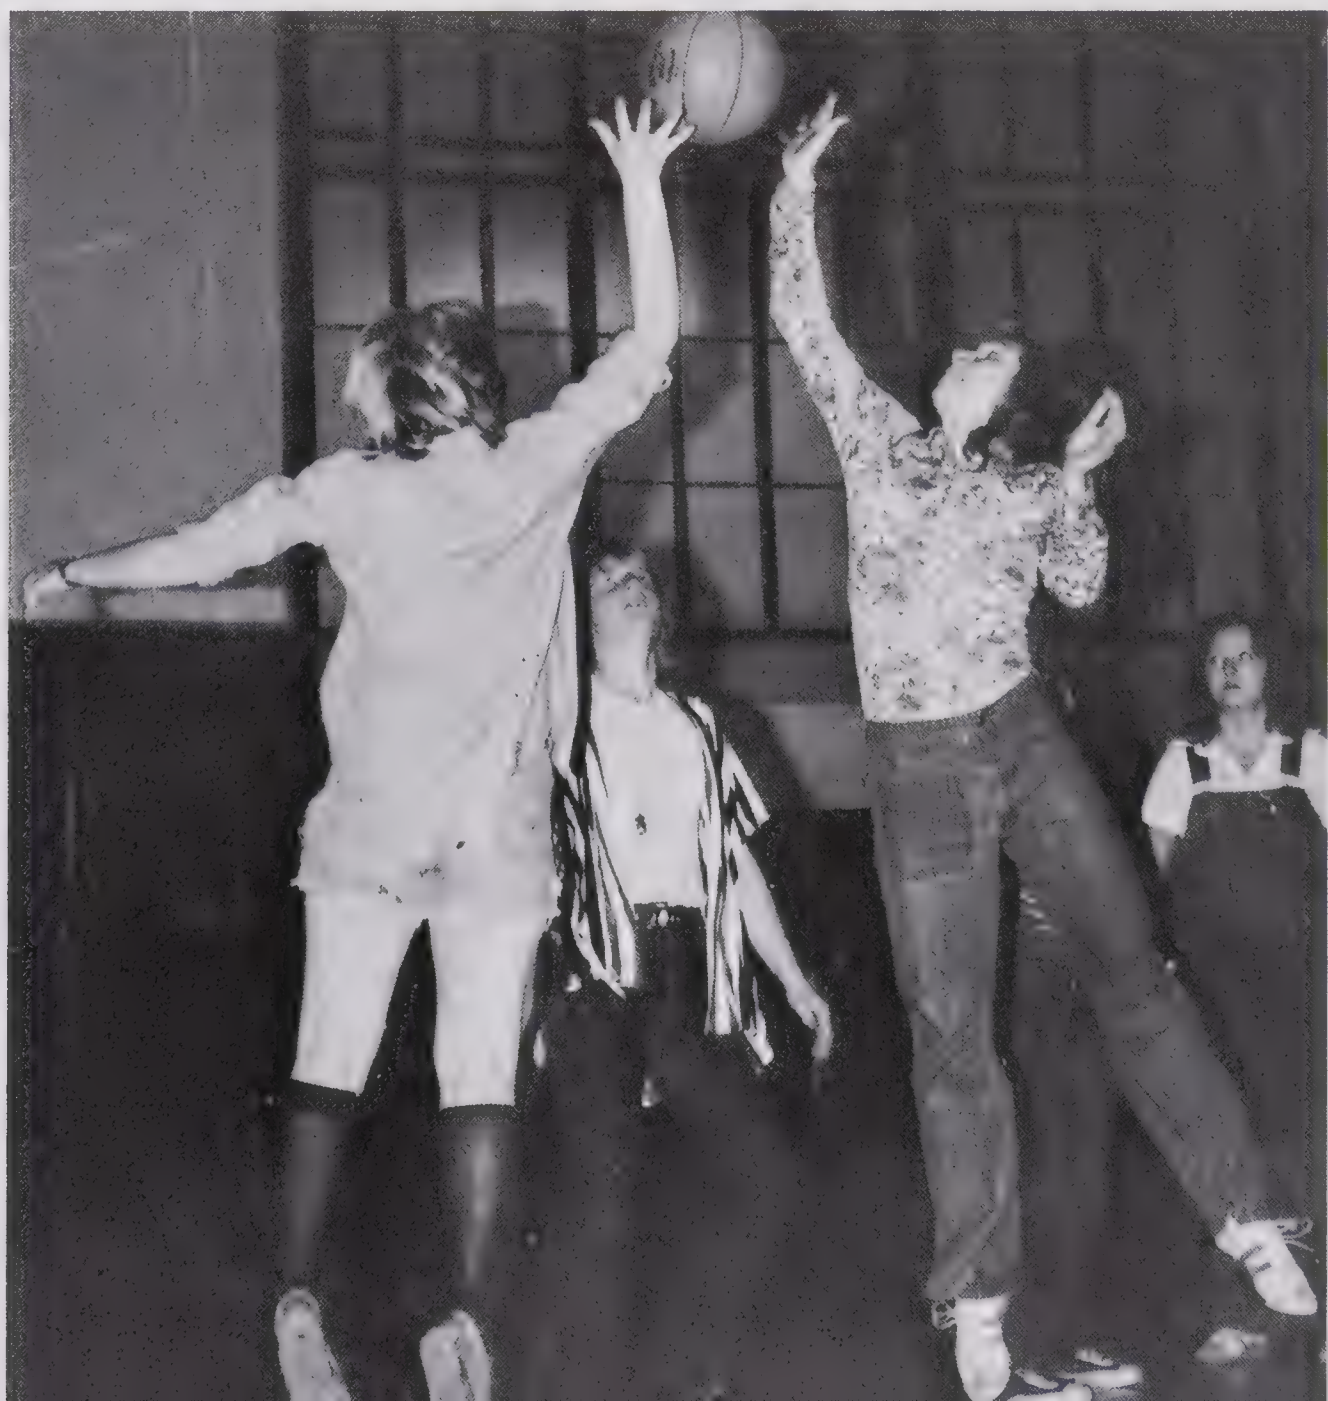

I.D.I.O.T.S.S.' indepth perception has perceived that the normal Homosapien requires a certain amount of rest and recuperation. So to relax you for your nap, Story Lady presents the following "tail":

Once upon a time, in the magic wonderland of Saturday Night Entertainment at AAA, the happy donkey fairys (have you every seen a gay donkey?) blest our gym with Donkey Basketball. Oh, what a wonder to see those blessed critters prance across the wooden dance floor and spread tidings of cheer, stardust, and manure. How hilarious to see funny little men and women try to lead these mystical creatures around the court. Oh, what wizardry is found in the frolics of fools who find merriment in antics of that frivolous, fun-filled game called "Donkey Basketball". How they dabble with silliness! Ho, Ho, Ho

Fun With Farver

"Hi, I'm big Bob and we have lots of fun planned for you tonight. . ."

"Oh, I hope I don't get picked, my hair is a mess!"

"Yes, we have an action-packed, thrill-a-minute evening in store for you. . ."

"Did you see the outfit she's wearing? What a fox!"

"Now will my lovely—er, uh, handsome assistant please give me the name of a contestant?"

-silence-

"Herman Gallstone, will you please come forward?"

"Take the box, take the box!"

"I will give you a dollar if you can flick this ping pong ball off it's stand."

"Door #1, Door #1. . ."

"Nice try, I'm sorry—you lose."

"Good grief, why didn't he pick me, that's easy!"

-LATER-

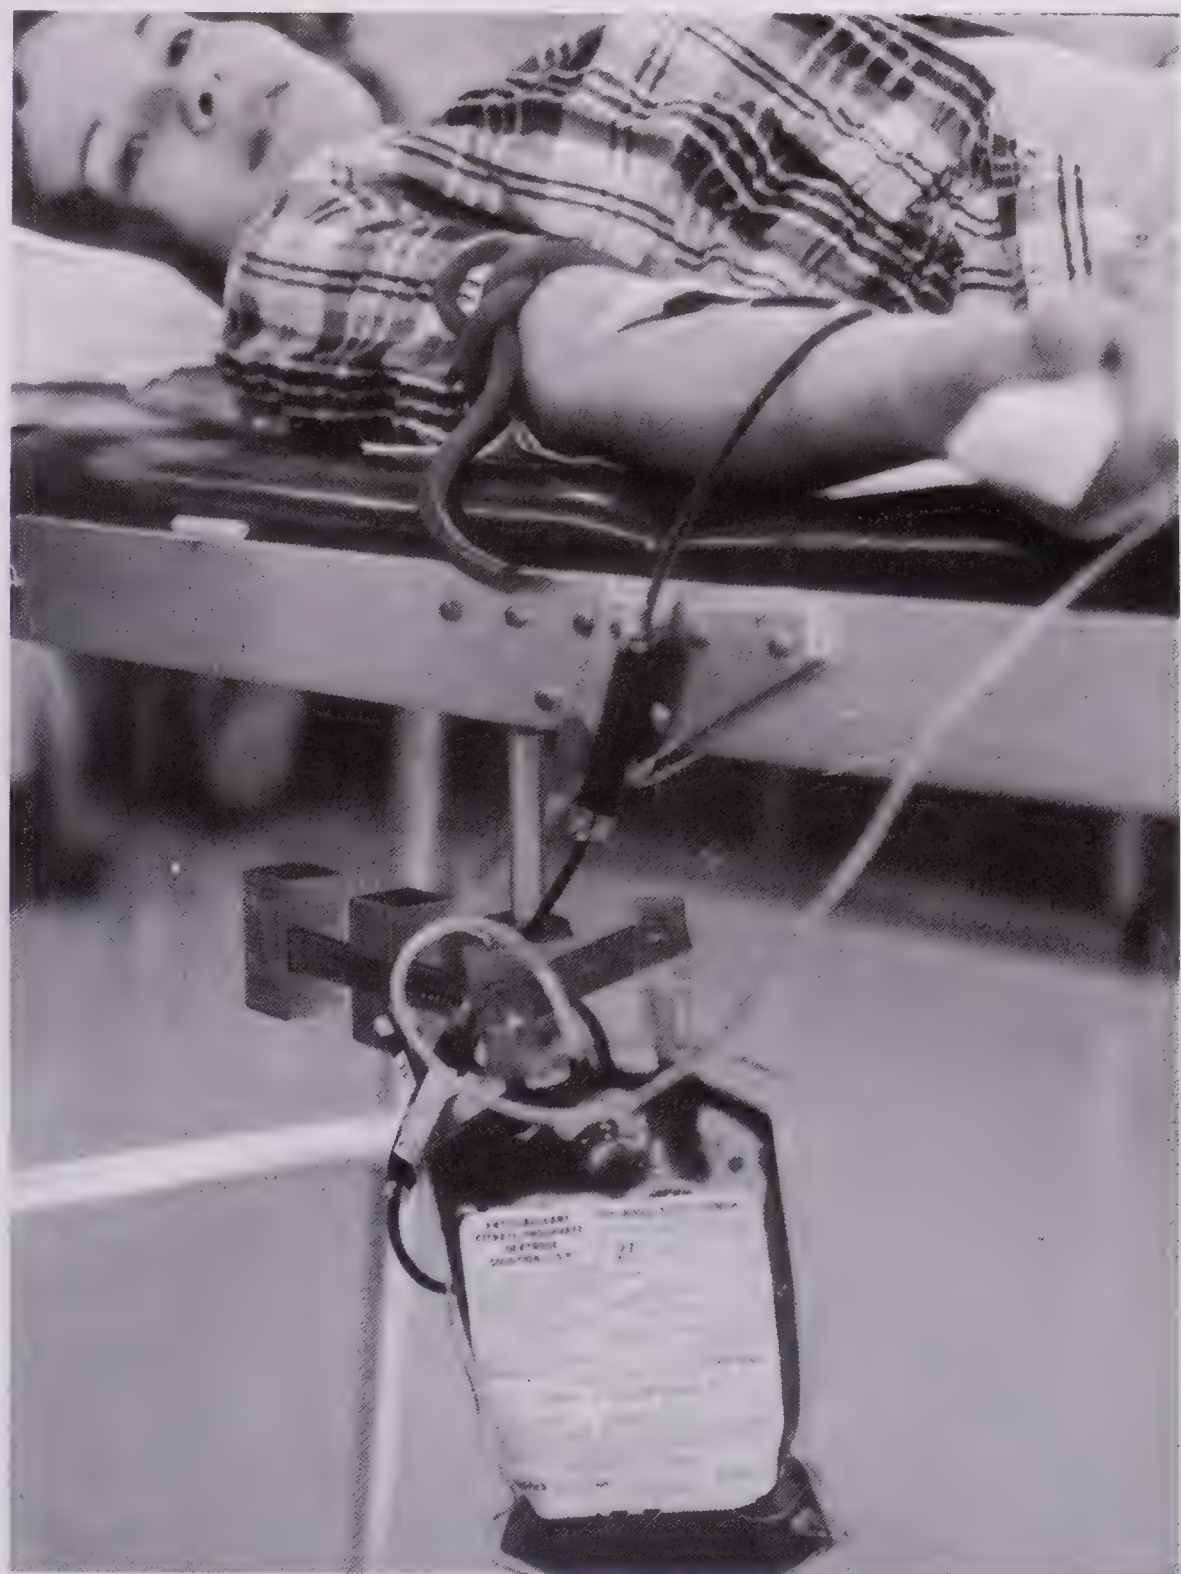

"Well, I hope you all had a good time tonight, 'Good Night!'"

"I've never been so embarassed in all my life, she's wearing the same dress I am!"

"He should've taken door #3, I told you. . ."

LIFESTYLES

Lifestyles. Although conformity may seem to be a way of life at AAA, in reality a lot of people do their own thing, in their own way ... mudsliding, clown-faces, glitter, midnight pillow fights in the mini-park, dilly bars. We celebrate life everyday in our own way ...

Girls' Dorms Gibson and Nelson

To further enhance your historical knowledge, I.D.I.O.T.S.S. provides you with some Gothic manuscripts discovered and excavated in a garbage can in West Seattle.

Rapunsel, Rapunsel, Let Down Your Hair . . .

It 'twas the days of yore when dragons roamed the earth that a majestic castle was erected, Ye Olde Gibson Hall, to house those knights who made their domain at AAA. Years passed and soon the knights ventured out to find a different abode. Fairskinned maidens moved into Ye Olde Gibson Hall and thus made it their haven. The populous grew with such haste that another, more modern, castle 'twas remodeled for the maidens use, Ye New Nelson Hall.

A harbor of relaxation and friendship for the maidens thus 'twas established when they inhabited the castles. A moat of sidewalks encampasses the old and new establishments for the maidens' to saunter their lovely forms 'round about the grounds.

Scores and furlongs of yards across the courtyard 'tis located the castles where the knights in shining armor doth dwell. These knights make use of these moats to travel to Ye Olde Gibson and Ye New Nelson Halls to engage in an ancient custom dubbed "escorting".

Three fair mistresses doth dwell amongst the damsels and extract the draw bridges to these when forlorn knights and fire-breathing dragons come calling. They art Mistress Maddox and Mistress Pollinger of Ye New Nelson Hall, and Lady Blackburn of Ye Olde Gibson. The maidens hold in high esteem these castles, as do the knights in shining armor, but it doth appear that the knights appreciate it more so than the damsels.

The New Freudian Times

JANUARY 15, 2075

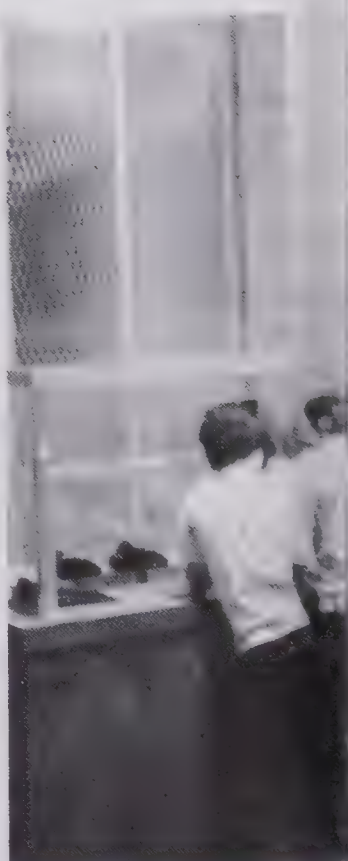

Archeological discoveries reached new breakthroughs with the discovery of Professor Whimblestone, in the recent uncovering in the vicinity of the ancient village called Auburn, Washington. His exclusive report to the Freudian is as follows:

My discovery of the ancient brick U-shaped building is monumental. However; discovering the actual purpose of this U-shaped building has been more difficult. I have come up with three basic theories regarding the usage of this building, though, and they are:

Theory 1: One possibility served for this structure could be an ancient hotel. However; from the abundance of rooms and their small size it could be advanced that it served some other purpose, as I have shown in Theory II.

Theory 2: In this theory I have explained the abundance of rooms. From the cramped size and fixed beds and desks the logical assumption would be that the building was used as either slave or prison quarters, with the throne room used as centers for the wardens.

Theory 3: One other possible idea is that this building was used as a dormitory for a boarding school. However, this theory is so unfeasible that it has been totally rejected. . .

A Bad Day - village life

5:45 am Waking up with only 2 and a half hours of sleep, I find it very hard to cope with today. The reason for my intemperate sleeping habits is that I spent most of my time allotted for slumber bringing Aunt Mary, Uncle Bill, and their 5 children from the airport to our home. Once arriving home I had to find suitable sleeping quarters for all of them.

5:50 am It seems to me that Aunt Mary didn't get much sleep last night either. By the temperature of my shower, it appears that she did her family's laundry that they had accumulated on their 2-week vacation in Mexico.

6:05 am Refreshed, if not slightly chilled from my shower, I trip over the twins (they got my bed) to get to my closet. Finding almost my entire wardrobe in the hamper I begin to get fairly unnerved. Even though it's only Thursday, I SUPPOSE I can wear the same thing I wore Monday.

6:29 am My hair-dryer went on the blink, Man, if I were in the dorm I could just borrow one, Oh well, I'll just go to school with wet hair. After all, George Vasquez always does!

7:03 am Only 7 minutes to get to my first class, and the engine to my '63 chevy still hasn't turned over, I'm catching my death of pneumonia out here in the middle of the Enumclaw Highway.

9:49 am In the middle of my Sem. Test Chemistry notes, I get a phone call from my mother. Her car has quit 2 miles south of Shelton and she needs me to pick her up. There goes my G.P.A. . . .

1:14 pm I was just kicked out of the library for "loitering".

1:29 pm The hall is a retreat for only a short time, soon Mr. Maddock tracks me down for two absences from last week.

1:43 pm The refuge I find in my car is soon interrupted by a concerned faculty member. With a shake of the finger and a reprimanding glare, I'm reminded that the Student Handbook strongly deplores that sort of thing.

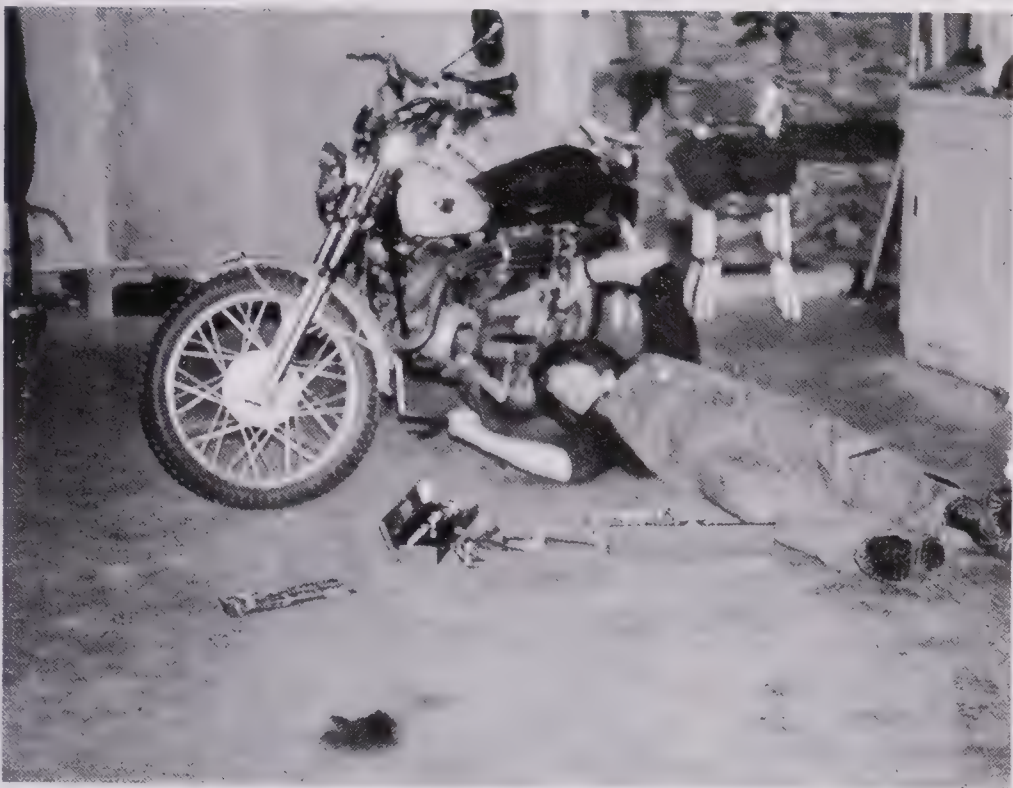

5:56 pm Heading home, I can hardly see out my windshield with all the rain. Even worse, all I can get on my radio is static.

6:15 pm Supper is the identical twin of today's lunch, only colder.

7:49 pm All my darling little cousins are running all over the house with the 'Disney Special' blaring full blast on the idiot tube. Too bad, I was hoping to study for my U.S. Adv. test.

11:23 pm After spending the evening studying and freezing in the fruit room (the only quiet place in the whole house) I finally get to indulge in some shut-eye. I really don't mind sleeping in the middle of the living rm. floor, but does everyone have to use my bedroom for their social gatherings? Oh well, tomorrow all my troubles should be gone . . .

A Good Day - village life

6:35 am Hey, it's nice Mrs. Crays cancelled her English IV adv. this morning. I got an extra half hour sleep and I'll have time for a good, sit-down breakfast.

6:55 am I can dig this new shampoo I bought last night while I was buzzing around town.

7:52 am I'm glad Mom let me take her car today, she's got a better tape-deck than my old klunker.

12:07 pm I heard we were having pizza today for lunch, so a dorm friend and I snuck off to 'Taco Time'. She says she's tired of lying on the floor boards.

1:00 pm My boss didn't have any work for me to do, so some of my "free" classmates and I tore off to Seattle. We heard there was a really neat sale on ski equipment. If it was still September we could float down the river.

7:39 pm Arriving home after a fun-filled day of frivolous activities, I look over all the wonderful 'bargains' I snatched up today. Wow, I must have saved my parents a mint!

11:13 pm I should have gone to bed earlier, but that movie on TV was just too good to walk away from. Those root beer floats I had were pretty fine, too, I wonder what dorm life is like.

Cafeteria

While traveling through the Auburn area, I found another subject for my:

RESTAURANT REVIEW A BI-NAUSIA REVIEW OF DINING ESTABLISHMENTS

Benard B. Gormandize, esq.

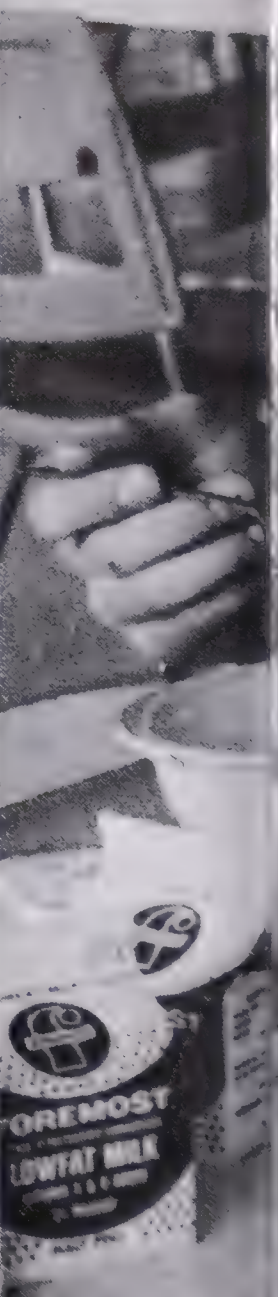

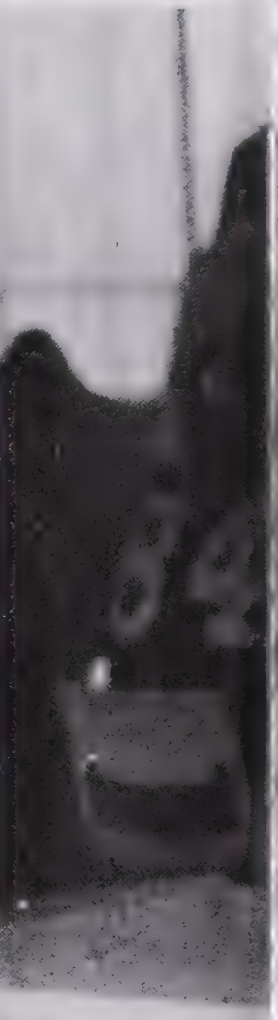

Today I had the pleasure of dining at a small, rarely frequented cafe, Chez Rudolph. This exclusive little eating establishment can be found amongst solitary light posts on the north-east corner of the AAA Resort. Next to the Witz-Ritz, this rustic cement-block building follows prerecession architecture as do the rest of the structures at this lush retreat.

Anyway, as I entered through the heavy alder door, I was greeted by the Maitre d' with a refreshing smile. Curiously enough, as I passed him my extremely alert ears picked up an annoying clicking. I'm still wondering what that atrocious noise was? I inquired discreetly whether my reservation had been confirmed and how long it would be until I would see the menu, the shocking reply was, "Do you want peanut butter and jelly sandwiches for the next two weeks?" I was appalled and stood frozen with shock. The once-gracious host herded me toward a large stack of trays. It was then that I noticed that I would be eating buffet style: oh, if only I had known! The sterling (for I'm certain that that's what it was) bore an uncanny resemblance to some Woolworth originals I recall from a childhood experience. The tastefully simple porcelain (I was told the design is called "Melmac") adds a genuinely humble quality to the overall atmosphere. I was absolutely horrified when I realized that I would not be able to select the foods that made up my meal. Several young ladies clad in elegantly simple golden smocks chose the foods and handed me my plate with all four courses on it. Imagine — FOUR courses on ONE plate! I learned that the entree' was "Pizza". I had thought it was filet-of-sole.

When I requested a glass of Sherry, I received nothing but dumbfounded stares! As I left the banquet table of delectable delights, I entered the dining room. A young hostess directed me to a corner table from which I enjoyed a fantastic view; curtains ARE lovely. Seated, I began a veritable adventure of savoring the pizza/filet-of-sole, french fries, salad, bread and milk. The unique cheese sauce on the sole filet pleased my palate and the salad tasted very good, although a little watery. There were no refills of milk, and when I finished, I waited around almost half an hour for my check, (speak of poor service). Finally, I noticed a strange custom that was being practiced around me. The men of the various groups (I'm sure they all didn't have reservations) were seating and unseating the young ladies. They also were carrying the trays upon which the food was served. How unique! It didn't seem like they were understaffed. I decided to conform and picked up my tray and mimicked the young men. The trays were set in a strange, somewhat antique-looking rack.

Mother - Daughter Brunch

To a Daughter Away at School

The brightness of the sunlight in your hair
Was like a lamp now suddenly blown out.
Your laughter through the rooms and on the stair,
Your exuberance, your childish shout
Are silenced --- and old distant walls
Have closed you in, where books with their demands
Lay hold upon you; and the future calls
And draws you forward with persistent hands.

Though the fabric of my mother love is strong,
I would not hold you by a single thread.
Go forward, keep your courage, keep your song
Of living clear, your heart pure and unafraid,
Your faith as high as always it has been,
Your values true.

But — oh, dear God — some way
There is a victory that I, too, must win
Over this strange, fierce loneliness today.

Work

WORK: Our work program here at AAA is a valuable step in the maturity of each student. By working off their bill the students receive extensive training in preparation for life in the real world. And most important the student receives a valuable lesson in . . . STOP! I CAN'T STAND IT ANY LONGER! In reality, of course, most students prefer their extracurricular activities over their jobs, but it's the only way to pay off their bill. Work, however, affects them both psychologically and socially. It's interesting to observe some of the effects here on campus:

A) Cafeteria workers, when asked a mathematical question, answer that they can only serve mashed potatoes today.

B) Dorm Monitors tell teachers that they can only take showers the second hour (of study hall).

C) Readers sign their name with a "+5 extra credit".

D) P.E. dept. workers begin each question in class with a "time out".

The list goes on and on. The most mind-boggling effect comes in the summertime when students go through what I.D.I.O.T.T.S. refers to as the "cold-time card syndrome". The "guilt complex" is an evident effect of this malady, if not the most harmful. It produces symptoms that have been observed as violent physical tremors accompanied by obvious pain and sweaty palms. You might observe some of these victims clawing at blank walls, as if in search of the long-neglected academy time clock.

Harris Pine Mills

HPM: A cold drenching rain poured over the campus as the sawdust truck lumbered under the sawdust bin at Harris Pine Furniture Factory. A moment later flames and sawdust cascaded over the truck, hiding it momentarily from view. Instantly the driver leaped from the truck, and fire department was contacted.

Moments later black smoke billowed and flowed into the air over the factory and found faculty tripping and hurrying in the pouring rain. Trucks roared up Muckleshoot and soon firequenching water spilled from fire truck hoses.

Later . . . A blackened hulk of a sawdust bin glares over a temporarily shut down factory. Towering inferno is not more . . .
